U. S. Lifts Soviet Tourist Travel Curbs

Government Urges USSR Do Likewise

Russ Diplomats, Correspondents Still Restricted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States notified Russia Friday that it is eliminating travel restrictions on all Soviet visitors to the United States. It called on the Soviet government to remove restrictions on American visitors to Russia.

Travel restrictions are being continued on Soviet diplomats and officials stationed in this country as well as on Soviet correspondents.

Travel of such persons outside New York and Washington is authorized according to the amount of travel about the Soviet Union which is permitted to U.S. diplomats and correspondents stationed in Moscow.

Unilateral Action

The United States acted on its own in lifting restrictions on the journeys of Soviet tourists and special delegations which come here by agreement with the Soviet government. About 1,500 Soviet citizens come in delegations each year and another 500 as tourists for a total of around 2,000.

The number of Americans going to the Soviet Union presently totals between 11,000 and 12,000 of whom an estimated 10,000 are tourists and around 1,500 are members of exchange delegations.

More Cities Opened To Soviets

Following are cities listed by State Department officials as among those formerly closed to Russian visitors which are now opened to the Soviets under the new order:

Detroit; Pittsburgh; St. Louis; San Diego; Dallas; Houston; Cincinnati; -Palm Beach (and West Palm Beach), Fla.; Charleston, W. Va.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Youngstown, Ohio; Hartford, Conn.; Springfield, Mass.; Rochester, N.Y.; Santa Fe, N.M., Albuquerque, N.M.; Memphis, Tenn., and Phoenix, Ariz.

Farm Officials Confess Taking Estes Payment

RAIL ECONOMIES SET — J. E. Wolfe, of Chicago, chief spokesman for the nation's railroads, said in New Orleans yesterday the railroads plan to put labor economies into effect as soon as possible. Two Admit They Lied Under Oath; Are Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two middle-aged farm officials from Oklahoma told Senate investigators Friday they lied under oath when they denied taking $1,640.80 in a Billie Sol Estes cotton-allotment deal.

Louis N. Dumas and Arthur Daniel Stone admitted also they did not report the money on their income tax returns.

Their voices barely audible in the hushed hearing room, the two men said they had resigned from the Agriculture Department effective Monday. For each it ended more than a quarter-century of service.

Dumas was office manager at Eufala for the McIntosh County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, while Stone was county performance supervisor.

Resignation Not Accepted

Although Dumas and Stone told the senators they had resigned, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman announced shortly after the hearing that he had ordered their suspension. Their resignations were received at the department Friday but were not accepted.

It was explained at the department that suspension is a stronger action, for while it carries a 15-day period in which the two may request a hearing, removal after suspension would prevent future employment by the department.

County managers are selected by the county committees but paid by the federal government. Managers usually appoint their supervisors. Salaries for these jobs ordinarily run in the $6,000-to-$8,000 range.

Dumas had been office manager for two years and had worked for the county committee since 1935. Stone had been supervisor since 1936.

Criminal Action Possible

It was not immediately indicated what sort—if any—criminal action would be brought against the two men.

Railroads Will Go Ahead With Labor Cutback

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A protracted battle over rail manpower—with more than 40,000 jobs at stake—headed toward a showdown Friday as a spokesman for the railroads announced plans to put disputed labor economies into effect as soon as possible.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, responded to the announcement with charges that the railroads have been trying all along to "precipitate a transportation crisis." He said the railroads "can be expected to push the issue to a strike stage."

The railroads contend they seek only to eliminate "featherbedding" — the use of men on jobs where they are not needed—and have accused the unions of a "public-be-damned attitude toward the national interests."

Gilbert was one of five union chiefs representing some 200,000 on-train employes who met here Friday to consider an offer from the National Mediation Board to arbitrate the dispute.

The five rejected arbitration but expressed hopes that negotiations with the railroads might be resumed.

J. E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the railroads, followed the union statement with an announcement that the railroads had no alternative other than "to serve notice on the unions that the recommendations of the Presidential Railroad Commission will be made effective."

GOP Medicare Plan Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's medical care program survived its first test in the Senate Friday when a rival Republican plan was rejected on a voice vote.

That left intact the administration-backed proposal to provide medical care for the aged with financing through an increase in payroll Social Security taxes.

A vote on this plan is expected next week. If it passes, it still would have to be approved by the House.

Defeated Friday was a substitute plan offered by Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky. It called for federal expenditures of up to $1.4 billion a year to subsidize private group insurance plans for persons 65 and over.

Instead of an increase in Social Security taxes, the Morton plan would have been financed out of general government revenues.

Second Cache Of Money Believed Bookie's Found

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two paper sacks containing $168,675.52 were discovered Friday by police in a garage on the same street where $2.4 million was found in an abandoned car Tuesday.

Police also linked the latest cache of loot to imprisoned bookmaker Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty.

The money, ranging from pennies to $100 bills, was stuffed in a shopping bag and a large brown sack. Also found by city police in the garage at 47 Oxford St. were a loaded .25-caliber automatic and gambling equipment.

Police Chief Austin J. Conley and Police Director William V. McLaughlin said they believed the garage was the last base of operations for Moriarty who was sentenced last February to serve 2 to 3 years in the state prison at Trenton for bookmaking.

The $2.4 million found Tuesday was in an old green car in a garage at 123 Oxford St. Police said the money belonged to Moriarty. But Moriarty, serving a 2-to 3-year sentence at the state prison in Trenton for bookmaking, has neither claimed nor denied ownership of the cash.

Morocco King Sends Troops Into Algeria

Strategic Desert Posts Taken Over In Land-Grab Move

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The Algerian nationalist government, reeling under internal revolt and administrative chaos, announced Friday that royal Moroccan troops have moved in and occupied strategic border areas in the Algerian Sahara Desert.

News of the Moroccan incursion burst like a bombshell in the Algiers prefecture, where the newly installed regime of Premier Youssef ben Khedda sought frantically to stem the tide of internal troubles, including rebellion.

The Algerian leaders appeared depressed and disillusioned by the land-grabbing move of Morocco's King Hassan II in the midst of the mounting difficulties that beset this three-day-old nation.

Invasion Denied

In Rabat, Moroccan officials denied any invasion of Algerian soil. They claimed that Moroccan troops merely had occupied frontier territory considered to be Moroccan.

Morocco had been regarded as a friend and ally in the long struggle for independence from France. The Moroccan flag was prominently displayed by the jubilant crowds that celebrated independence for days in the streets of Algiers.

The tough Moroccan infantrymen moved into several desert posts in the area of Tindouf and Colomb Bechar, Algerian officials said.

Long Claimed By Morocco

There were apparently no Algerian troops in the area, and no opposition from French units manning the military bases there.

Tindouf, a lead-mining center, and Colomb Bechar, an important French military base, have long been claimed by Morocco from the French, but the Moroccans did not press their claims in the final stages of the Algerian war.

In Rabat, King Hassan was reported to have set his deal on the Moroccan occupation of the area by receiving leaders of local tribes who swore allegiance to the Moroccan crown.

Matsu Shelled In Red Gun Test

MATSU ISLAND, Off China Coast (AP) — Communist China test-fired its big guns against the Matsu complex this week. Two men, caught in the open, were wounded.

Matsu's commanding general said the Red fire was part of an obvious Communist program to test new artillery against this cluster of strongly fortified Nationalist Chinese islands just off Foochow, a key mainland port.

Beginning May 13, after almost two years of Red artillery silence in the Matsu area, the Communist test-fire has followed a definite probing pattern of 20 to 50 shells each time. It is interpreted by Nationalist defenders here as a probable prelude to heavy artillery attacks.

The belief that the Reds will take military action against the Matsu complex in 1962 permeates this island, from the top command down to the men who stand watch around the clock in hundreds of gun positions.

Pacific A-Test Faces New Delay

Joint Task Force 8 postponed the shot for a second 24-hour period just before midnight Thursday night after the countdown was about an hour from launch.

But the Weather Bureau in Honolulu said photographs taken by the U.S. Tiros satellite Friday showed overcasts and heavy cloudiness with rain squalls to the south and east of Johnston Island.

The east-lying clouds and rains probably would move in over the test area late Friday, a forecaster said.

Soblen, Moved To Prison, Asks British Asylum

LONDON (UPI) — Runaway Soviet spy Robert A. Soblen Friday requested political asylum in Britain. Shortly afterwards the red pajama-clad Soblen was taken from his hospital to Brixton prison while Britain pondered his latest maneuver to escape life imprisonment in the United States.

A spokesman for the British Home Office said Soblen's request for asylum was being "considered." The announcement came after British High Court Justice Sir Alan Mocatta signed a writ of habeas corpus that delayed Soblen's return to the United States at least until July 17.

A Home Office spokesman said Friday night the outcome of the request for asylum could be known "Monday or some other time next week."

The desperate political and legal maneuvers of the 62-year-old Lithuanian - born Soblen—already doomed to die from leukemia—snarled him in such a tangled and complex web that no responsible American or British official would even guess how it would end.

Soblen jumped $100,000 bail in New York June 28 and fled to Israel on a forged passport belonging to his dead Canadian brother. His attorney, Ari Ankorion, had sought political asylum for him in Tel Aviv but Premier David-Gurion ordered Soblen expelled Sunday for entering the country illegally.

Soblen slashed his wrist and plunged a stolen steak knife into his abdomen the same day while he was being flown to New York aboard an El Al Israeli jet airliner in the company of the Chief U. S. Marshal, James McShane, and an Israeli police surgeon, Dr. Asher Gottlieb.

There was speculation Friday he had knifed himself more to halt the flight than to try to kill himself.

Italian Jet Missing In India; 94 Aboard

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Bombay's Santa Cruz Airport reported early Saturday that an Italian jet airliner, due here from Bangkok with 94 persons aboard, was four hours overdue.

The airport control said the DC8 of Alitalia Airline was in contact with the tower six minutes before it was scheduled to land at 12:05 a.m. Then contact was lost. At 4 a.m. nothing had been heard of the giant craft.

Heavy rain fell in the area at the time.

Airport officials alerted crash services and police stations in a 50 mile radius were told to report any news of the airliner.

Foreign Lobby Inquiry Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-long, far-ranging inquiry into how far lobbyists hired by foreign governments go to influence U.S. policy and get more foreign aid or sugar quotas was voted Friday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said the investigation would be far broader than one being undertaken by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee into efforts by highly paid foreign agents to influence this year's sugar legislation.

The committee plans to delve into many other activities of non-diplomatic representatives of foreign governments, most of them U.S. citizens, Fulbright said.

If the Senate approves the committee's $50,000 request for the inquiry, it is not expected to get under way fully until after Congress adjourns. The Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., plans to start its probe within a few days.

Brazilian Food Riots Flare Anew

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —Mobs were reported to have renewed attacks on food stores in the suburb of Duque de Caxia on Friday and panicky merchants in Rio de Janeiro pulled down their shutters in fear of outbreaks here.

At least 17 persons were killed Thursday in food riots in Duque de Caxias and two nearby suburbs — where apparently there was no real shortage of food.

Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Rio de Janeiro charged in a radio speech that Communists were trying to stir up trouble.

The government radio station reported the renewal of rioting in Duque de Caxias, where a mob ran rampant Thursday with axes and clubs, sacking food stores and fighting police and storekeepers. The mayor said 15 persons were killed although some newspapers reported up to 50 dead. About 100 stores were smashed.

Underground Shot Biggest Fired In U.S.

100 Kiloton Device Sends Top 300 Feet Of Earth Skyward

CAMP MERCURY, Nev. (AP) —An H-bomb type device, in the mightiest blast yet fired in the United States, sent a shower of rocks and sand soaring spectacularly thousands of feet over the desert Friday.

Fired in a chamber 650 feet under Yucca Flat, it awed veteran watchcers of Nevada atomic fireworks by emitting a flash brilliantly visible 55 miles away.

Then, under a wallop equal to 100,000 tons of TNT, the top 300 feet of earth soared skyward in the shape of a giant slate-gray cone. It rose to perhaps 7,000 feet, looking to observers like a giant chrysanthemum bloom. From the middle of the bloom shot a towering plume of smoke that rose quickly to 19,000 feet.

Gravel and sand sifted slowly earthward. Only the finest dust particles, carried aloft to 12,000 feet by the surging cloud, drifted off site to the north. The Atomic Energy Commission said the radioactivity would fall harmlessly on unpopulated areas.

Huge Crater In Desert Floor

On the desert floor was a great shallow crater, expected to be one-third of a mile wide and 300 feet deep when measured.

The test was the second in the AEC's Plowshare series to test peaceful uses of atomic energy. The idea was to create a crater that would show scientists how they may some day use nuclear force for such projects as harbors and canals.

It was the first announced use of a hydrogen-bomb type explosive here. The previous shots in test series between 1951 and 1958, and in the latest series of 41 underground shots starting last September, have been presumed to involve conventional atomic explosives.

100 Kiloton Explosion

The difference is that so-called atomic bomb have uranium as the basic ingredient and explode in a process known as nuclear fission. H-bomb types use heavy hydrogen as the basic ingredient, and employ a process known as fusion. They require an A-bomb type trigger, however.

The force of Friday's shot was equal to 100 kilotons, or 100,000 tons of TNT. This compares with 74.3 kilotons for the previous most powerful, a shot from a tethered balloon in 1957.

Scientists take to the air again Saturday for the first time since 1958, with a low-power shot only a few feet off the desert floor. It is a weapons development test, as all others here except for Friday's are presumed to have been. The first shot in the Plowshare series was underground in New Mexico salt beds.

Train Strikes Weed Burner, Catches Fire

SYRACUSE, Kan. (AP)—A Santa Fe passenger train struck a right-of-way weed burner on the main line a mile east of Syracuse causing an explosion and fire Friday.

Three of the train's four diesel locomotives caught fire and were badly damaged. Two crewmen, Watson Campbell and Edward Howard, of La Junta, Colo., were burned. The weed burner crew escaped before impact.

Saskatchewan Dentists Support Doctors' Strike

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) —Saskatchewan's 182 dentists Friday night came out in support of a doctors' strike against the government's medical care insurance program.

Dr. W. L. Calrk, president of the province's College of Dental Surgeons, told a news conference after a meeting that dentists would continue to provide normal services "as far as possible," but would perform surgery under the act "only in emergency cases."

The controversial medicare act extends to dentists only in cases of actual surgery such as jaw operations.

The new threat to the province's health came as five of the striking doctors were reported to have left their homes in fear of reprisals from angry citizens and a sixth died of a heart attack blamed on a letter signed "disgusted citizen."

Clark said that dentists throughout the province were forced to curtail services since the strike began one week ago.

He pointed out that dentists by law were forbidden to operate on cardiac cases, diabetics or pregnant women without a case history of the patient and in some cases without having medical attention available.

"In many cases dentists have been unable to contact doctors to obtain case histories," hesaid."We cannot ignore the fact that serious legal consequences would result if we treated some cases without medical attention."

Clark revealed that he personally had to refuse to perform an extraction for an elderly cardiac patient because he did not have her medical record.

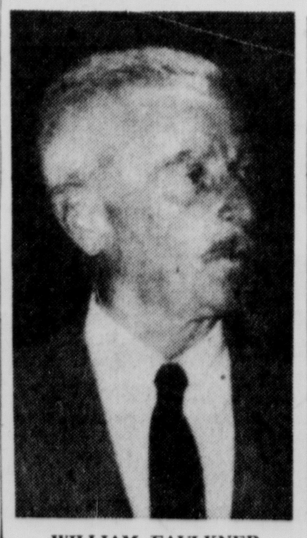

He said it was no use sending dental patients to the province's emergency medical centers, which are being manned by 204 of the striking doctors, because medical records would not be available.

William Faulkner, Literary Genius, Dies Of Heart Attack

WILLIAM FAULKNER

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Author William Faulkner, whose "life's work in the agony and sweat of the human spirit" brought him the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes, died Friday at 64 .

The death of the shy, retiring literary genius came from a heart attack in his hometown of Oxford, which President Kennedy—in tribute to Faulkner—said is "in the heart of the setting for that turbulent world of light and shadow which was the towering creation of his mind and art."

Faulkner made the mythical Mississippi county with the unpronounceable name Yoknapatawpha and its county seat town Jefferson famed throughout the world. The locale of many of his interconnected novels and short stories bore a close physical resemblance to Oxford.

His wife, Estelle, the childhood sweetheart whom he married when only a few Mississippians knew his name—was at his side when he died.

The small, wiry man with close-cropped iron-gray hair and an upswept mustache became the fourth American to win the Nobel prize for literature, when he received the 1949 award in 1950.

His description of his life's work came at his acceptance of the coveted award.

"I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail," said Faulkner in his Nobel acceptance speech. "He is immortal, because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance."

Faulkner said the duty of a writer was "to help man endure by lifting his heart, by reminding him of the courage and honor and hope and pride and compassion and pity and sacrifice which have been the glory of his past."

He got the Nobel award a year late because the Nobel jury deadlocked in 1949 and made no presentation that year. His Pulitzer prize came in 1955 for "A Fable," a religious allegory which Faulkner considered his most important work.

His most recent work was "The Reivers," current Book of the Month Club selection for July. It got favorable attention from reviewers but was not rated as one of his major works.

"The Reivers", with a steady stream of rustic humor and comedy is unlike most Faulkner books, which probe into human corruption.

Its setting, however, is Yoknapatawpha County.

Heavy rain fell in the area at the time.

Airport officials alerted crash services and police stations in a 50 mile radius were told to report any news of the airliner.

Brazilian Food Riots Flare Anew

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —Mobs were reported to have renewed attacks on food stores in the suburb of Duque de Caxia on Friday and panicky merchants in Rio de Janeiro pulled down their shutters in fear of outbreaks here.

At least 17 persons were killed Thursday in food riots in Duque de Caxias and two nearby suburbs — where apparently there was no real shortage of food.

Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Rio de Janeiro charged in a radio speech that Communists were trying to stir up trouble.

The government radio station reported the renewal of rioting in Duque de Caxias, where a mob ran rampant Thursday with axes and clubs, sacking food stores and fighting police and storekeepers. The mayor said 15 persons were killed although some newspapers reported up to 50 dead. About 100 stores were smashed.

Foreign Lobby Inquiry Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-long, far-ranging inquiry into how far lobbyists hired by foreign governments go to influence U.S. policy and get more foreign aid or sugar quotas was voted Friday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said the investigation would be far broader than one being undertaken by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee into efforts by highly paid foreign agents to influence this year's sugar legislation.

The committee plans to delve into many other activities of non-diplomatic representatives of foreign governments, most of them U.S. citizens, Fulbright said.

If the Senate approves the committee's $50,000 request for the inquiry, it is not expected to get under way fully until after Congress adjourns. The Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., plans to start its probe within a few days.

GOP Medicare Plan Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's medical care program survived its first test in the Senate Friday when a rival Republican plan was rejected on a voice vote.

That left intact the administration-backed proposal to provide medical care for the aged with financing through an increase in payroll Social Security taxes.

A vote on this plan is expected next week. If it passes, it still would have to be approved by the House.

Defeated Friday was a substitute plan offered by Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky. It called for federal expenditures of up to $1.4 billion a year to subsidize private group insurance plans for persons 65 and over.

Instead of an increase in Social Security taxes, the Morton plan would have been financed out of general government revenues.

Pacific A-Test Faces New Delay

Joint Task Force 8 postponed the shot for a second 24-hour period just before midnight Thursday night after the countdown was about an hour from launch.

But the Weather Bureau in Honolulu said photographs taken by the U.S. Tiros satellite Friday showed overcasts and heavy cloudiness with rain squalls to the south and east of Johnston Island.

The east-lying clouds and rains probably would move in over the test area late Friday, a forecaster said.

Matsu Shelled In Red Gun Test

MATSU, ISLAND, Off China Coast (AP) — Communist China test-fired its big guns against the Matsu complex this week. Two men, caught in the open, were wounded.

Matsu's commanding general said the Red fire was part of an obvious Communist program to test new artillery against this cluster of strongly fortified Nationalist Chinese islands just off Foochow, a key mainland port.

Beginning May 13, after almost two years of Red artillery silence in the Matsu area, the Communist test-fire has followed a definite probing pattern of 20 to 50 shells each time. It is interpreted by Nationalist defenders here as a probable prelude to heavy artillery attacks.

The belief that the Reds will take military action against the Matsu complex in 1962 permeates this island, from the top command down to the men who stand watch around the clock in hundreds of gun positions.

Train Strikes Weed Burner, Catches Fire

SYRACUSE, Kan. (AP)—A Santa Fe passenger train struck a right-of-way weed burner on the main line a mile east of Syracuse causing an explosion and fire Friday.

Three of the train's four diesel locomotives caught fire and were badly damaged. Two crewmen, Watson Campbell and Edward Howard, of La Junta, Colo., were burned. The weed burner crew escaped before impact.

Saskatchewan Dentists Support Doctors' Strike

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) —Saskatchewan's 182 dentists Friday night came out in support of a doctors' strike against the government's medical care insurance program.

Dr. W. L. Calrk, president of the province's College of Dental Surgeons, told a news conference after a meeting that dentists would continue to provide normal services "as far as possible," but would perform surgery under the act "only in emergency cases."

The controversial medicare act extends to dentists only in cases of actual surgery such as jaw operations.

The new threat to the province's health came as five of the striking doctors were reported to have left their homes in fear of reprisals from angry citizens and a sixth died of a heart attack blamed on a letter signed "disgusted citizen."

Clark said that dentists throughout the province were forced to curtail services since the strike began one week ago.

He pointed out that dentists by law were forbidden to operate on cardiac cases, diabetics or pregnant women without a case history of the patient and in some cases without having medical attention available.

"In many cases dentists have been unable to contact doctors to obtain case histories," hesaid."We cannot ignore the fact that serious legal consequences would result if we treated some cases without medical attention."

Clark revealed that he personally had to refuse to perform an extraction for an elderly cardiac patient because he did not have her medical record.

He said it was no use sending dental patients to the province's emergency medical centers, which are being manned by 204 of the striking doctors, because medical records would not be available.

Second Cache Of Money Believed Bookie's Found

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two paper sacks containing $168,675.52 were discovered Friday by police in a garage on the same street where $2.4 million was found in an abandoned car Tuesday.

Police also linked the latest cache of loot to imprisoned bookmaker Joseph (Newsboy) Moriarty.

The money, ranging from pennies to $100 bills, was stuffed in a shopping bag and a large brown sack. Also found by city police in the garage at 47 Oxford St. were a loaded .25-caliber automatic and gambling equipment.

Police Chief Austin J. Conley and Police Director William V. McLaughlin said they believed the garage was the last base of operations for Moriarty who was sentenced last February to serve 2 to 3 years in the state prison at Trenton for bookmaking.

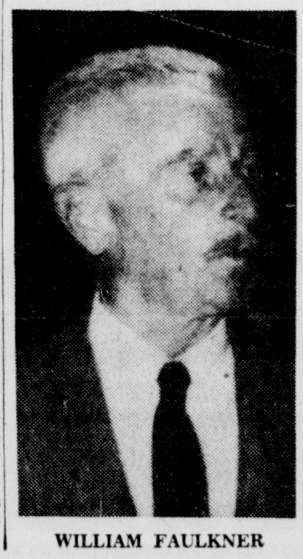

The $2.4 million found Tuesday was in an old green car in a garage at 123 Oxford St. Police said the money belonged to Moriarty. But Moriarty, serving a 2-to 3-year sentence at the state prison in Trenton for bookmaking, has neither claimed nor denied ownership of the cash.

WILLIAM FAULKNER

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Author William Faulkner, whose "life's work in the agony and sweat of the human spirit" brought him the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes, died Friday at 64 .

The death of the shy, retiring literary genius came from a heart attack in his hometown of Oxford, which President Kennedy—in tribute to Faulkner—said is "in the heart of the setting for that turbulent world of light and shadow which was the towering creation of his mind and art."

Faulkner made the mythical Mississippi county with the unpronounceable name Yoknapatawpha and its county seat town Jefferson famed throughout the world. The locale of many of his interconnected novels and short stories bore a close physical resemblance to Oxford.

His wife, Estelle, the childhood sweetheart whom he married when only a few Mississippians knew his name—was at his side when he died.

The small, wiry man with close-cropped iron-gray hair and an upswept mustache became the fourth American to win the Nobel prize for literature, when he received the 1949 award in 1950.

His description of his life's work came at his acceptance of the coveted award.

"I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail," said Faulkner in his Nobel acceptance speech. "He is immortal, because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance."

Faulkner said the duty of a writer was "to help man endure by lifting his heart, by reminding him of the courage and honor and hope and pride and compassion and pity and sacrifice which have been the glory of his past."

He got the Nobel award a year late because the Nobel jury deadlocked in 1949 and made no presentation that year. His Pulitzer prize came in 1955 for "A Fable," a religious allegory which Faulkner considered his most important work.

His most recent work was "The Reivers," current Book of the Month Club selection for July. It got favorable attention from reviewers but was not rated as one of his major works.

"The Reivers", with a steady stream of rustic humor and comedy is unlike most Faulkner books, which probe into human corruption.

Its setting, however, is Yoknapatawpha County.

Security Financial Sues Three Maryland Officials

BALTIMORE (AP) — Security Financial Insurance Corp. sued three Maryland officials for $2 million Friday, claiming the officials conspired to destroy the concern.

Named as defendants were Albert W. Ward, director of the State Department of Assessments and Taxation; F. Douglass Sears, the state insurance commissioner, and [illegible] Wolf Jr., chief supervisor of savings and loan matters under Ward.

The suit, filed by Attorney Keith L. Seegmiller, asked $1 million as compensation and a second $1 million exemplary damages.

Security Financial had been the only commercial insurer in Maryland of savings and loan deposits.

State officials asked Circuit Court last month to put Security Financial into receivership. A hearing is scheduled for Monday.

Sears also declined to renew Security Financial's license for the year beginning July 1. A federal grand jury also has been investigating the concern.

Last week, Security Financial notified the savings and loan associations whose deposits it has been insuring that it was canceling their policies and withdrawing from the savings and loan insurance business.

The suit charged the three officials "entered into a conspiracy among themselves whereby they planned and agreed to act in concert to destroy plaintiff's business, to force plaintiff into insolvency and to cause its dissolution and the liquidation of its assets . . ."

Because of the actions of the three officials, the suit said, Security Financial was faced with an abnormally high withdrawal of deposits.

The suit called the actions oppressive, illegal, arbitrary and capricious. The suit also said the officials had ignored the public interest they are supposed to protect.

Chincoteague Pony Penning Set For July 25

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce expects one of the biggest crowds in years. Motels and tourist homes in this area already are booked heavily. A carnival centered on the penning opens next Friday.

Chincoteague firemen drive the ponies across Chincoteague Bay from Assateague Island to Chincoteague, pen them, then auction them off. They use the money for expenses and for charitable projects.

Because the herd was depleted by the tidal storm of last March, the town of Chincoteague bought back some of the ponies which had been sold at previous auctions. For this reason, it could be a second sale for some of the ponies.

The origin of the ponies on Assateague is obscure. One theory is that they swam ashore after the sinking of a Spanish ship.

M'Namara Sees Viet Nam War Lasting Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara voiced optimism Friday over the outcome of the warfare against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam but said it will be a long time before victory can be won.

"We can't expect termination of a war—and it is a war—in a matter of months," McNamara told a news conference. "It will be years before it is concluded and I believe it will be concluded successfully."

The secretary, who visited South Viet Nam in the spring, said the effectiveness of the Red guerrillas has declined, even though the scope of their operations has broadened. He said effectiveness of U.S. aid to the government forces has greatly increased over the past several months.

He said that for one thing government forces are reacting more quickly to Communist attacks with the help of U.S. helicopters which ferry them to the scene.

McNamara said among the plus factors are a much more favorable ratio of Communists killed and captured and a lesser number of attacks by the Communist Viet Cong.

A reporter noted stories that some 10,000 Communist North Vietnamese troops in Laos might be shifted into the South Vietnamese war.

McNamara said that as a neutral state Laos should not be used as a road for introduction of "subversive elements" into South Viet Nam.

"I have no evidence that they have or will move into South Viet Nam," the secretary said of the 10,000 North Vietnamese who helped the pro-Communist Pathet Lao in the long Laotian civil war.

Moratorium On Rail Mergers Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce and Justice Departments opposed Friday a proposal for a limited moratorium on railroad mergers.

Clarence D. Martin Jr., under secretary of commerce for transportation, said "real damage would be done if the Interstate Commerce Commission was stalled in its ability to make decisions" in pending merger cases.

"Some of the railroads are in pretty serious financial condition," he told the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Similarly, Asst. Atty. Gen. Lee Loevinger, in charge of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, said Congress should not pass legislation that would "hinder or delay consideration of pending applications."

The subcommittee is conducting hearings on a bill by Chairman Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., that would prohibit the ICC from approving prior to Dec. 31, 1963, rail mergers that would lessen competition substantially or tend to create a monopoly.

Farm Official

whose land had been taken for public projects.

After a lengthy investigation, the Agriculture Department declared the switch illegal and fined the 37-year-old Pecos, Tex., financier more than half a million dollars. The penalty still is under appeal within the department.

They admitted giving an Estes agent the names of McIntosh County farmers who had been replaced by public projects. The two lacked authority to transfer the cotton allotments but Estes later got 328.1 acres of McIntosh County allotments. The money Dumas and Stone received represenjed payment at $5 an acre—plus an unexplained 30 cents.

Both men insisted they thought they were providing only information that was available to the public.

Dumas read a prepared statement detailing his confession. Stone was so shaken that McClellan stepped in and read his statement for him.

"I am very sympathetic to both of you," McClellan said.

He pictured both men as "victims of a big, get-rich-quick scheme inimical to the interests and welfare of our country—caught in a trap."

But he said he believes both men knew what they were doing, noting that they had demanded cash and asked that records of the payment be destroyed.

Argentine Bond Drive Is Aimed At Black Money

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Argentina launched a bond selling campaign Friday that includes whitewashing black money—money not previously declared for tax purposes.

The campaign was launched as the cost of living rose, and the secretary of agriculture promised emergency measures to counteract the effects of six-months of drought in the heart of the cattle belt.

The whitewashing operation was announced by the Ministry of Economy in an effort to assure success o fa $45-million "patriotic loan" on Independence Day, July 9. Other issues are planned later. Under the whitewashing procedure, an investor can use black money—not heretofore declared for tax purposes—in two ways:

Buy patriotic loan bonds without penalty and with no questions asked. He must keep the bonds at least three months.

Pay a tax of 5 to 10 per cent on the black capital and then invest the remainder in any enterprise he chooses. Again, no questions will be asked.

Some economists estimated a billion dollars in black capital is available in Argentina or has been sent abroad. The government hopes to bring it into the open for much needed investment.

From the bond sale the government hopes to pay back salaries to government workers, largely unpaid in the three months since the crisis over the ouster of former President Arturo Frondizi, and pay up operating debts.

The government also announced it will help private enterprise seek renegotiation and consolidation of private loans from abroad.

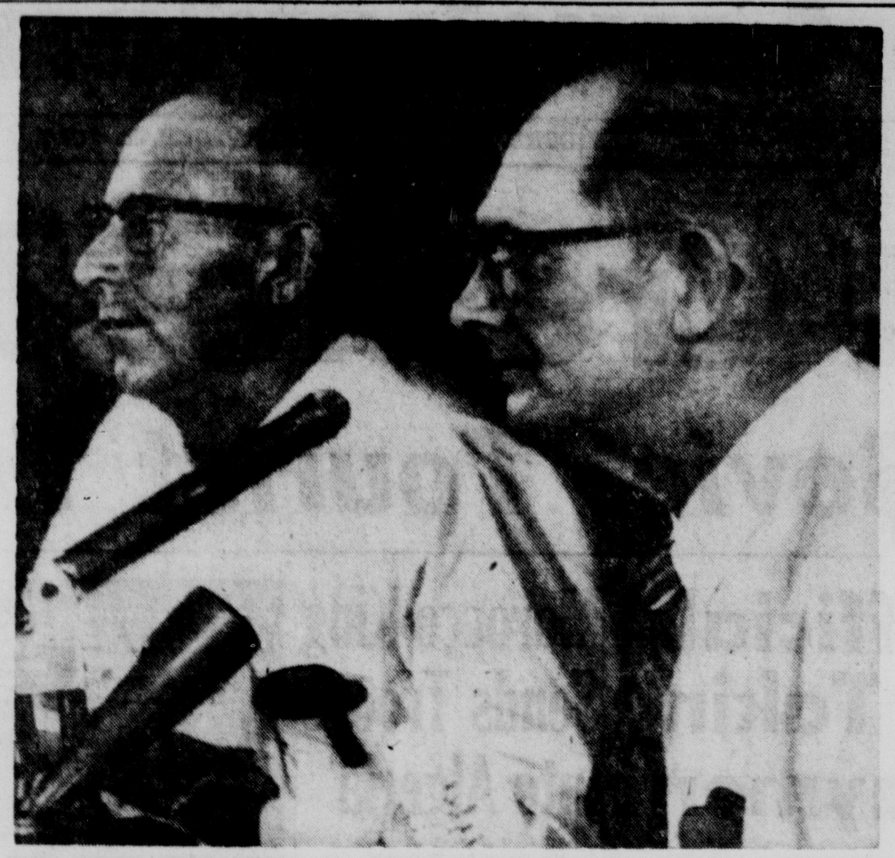

Katanga Gendarme Killed In Congo Clash

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP)—President Moise Tshombe claimed Katanga troops repulsed a Congolese army attack Thursday.

He told a hastily summoned news conference Friday the attack occurred at Katea, 30 miles from Kongolo, and that one Katanga gendarme was killed and nine others seriously wounded in the battle.

Tshombe said the clash was "not merely a skirmish but part of a plot which seeks to take away the whole of North Katanga from our administration."

The leader of this seceded province told newsmen that despite Leopoldville declarations, the talks with the central government have not broken down.

Prison Dorm Plan Revived

BALTIMORE (AP)—The State Department of Correction is renewing its efforts to build a new dormitory at Jessup for prisoners who work outdoors in the Anne Arundel County area.

James W. Curran, acting commissioner, submitted to the State Planning Department Friday a request for $2 million to construct the building, which would house prisoners from the correction camp at Sandy Point and trusties from the House of Correction who work outside.

The dormitory would be built near the Institution for Women, the renamed Reformatory for Women. It would be the same site proposed last year for a new correction camp.

Funds for construction of the facility were appropriated this year by the legislature but a rider prohibited spending them in the Jessup area. It is for this reason that the department is submitting the request again.

Curran said a survey of the Jessup area indicated neither residents nor their legislative representatives would offer serious opposition to the new plan.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fire extensively damaged a brick rowhouse in Baltimore Friday and caused injuries to three persons, including a fireman.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The University of Maryland's department of chemical engineering has received a $27,250 grant from the Atomic Energy Commission for its nuclear reactor training program.

The money will be used to purchase supplemental equipment, including a multi-channel analyzer, which will enable students to conduct more detailed work in connection with thesis research in nuclear engineering.

The university's nuclear reactor was installed on the campus in 1960. It is used primary for training and research at the graduate level.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said Friday 14 other senators have agreed to cosponsor his proposed amendment to the Constitution to permit voluntary prayers in public schools.

Among the 14 Beall listed were Republicans Butler of Maryland, Scott of Pennsylvania and Williams of Delaware, and Democrat Byrd of West Virginia.

Beall said the Senate Judiciary Committee intends to start hearings on his amendment within the next week or two.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Mayor Hugh Cropper Jr. reported an impasse Friday in negotiations for a right-of-way needed for construction of Ocean City's $850,000 convention hall.

A group of Elkton planners had announced Thursday they hoped to start construction of the hall in September and were aiming at a June, 1963, completion date.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A cranky draw bridge at Hanover Street finally yielded Friday after being stuck a dozen feet above street level. Thousands of rush hour motorists were delayed.

The bridge was being raised at 12:45 a.m. for a tugboat but jammed while being returned to a closed position. The bridge was not reopened to traffic until after 10 a.m.

Europeans Jam Travel Offices After Oran Battle

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — Panic-stricken Europeans besieged travel offices Friday seeking transport to France following Thursday's Moslem-European conflict in which nearly 100 persons died.

The panic was further increased Friday morning with a new outbreak of firing in the European city.

A mixed Moslem-European medical commission announced 96 persons were killed and 163 wounded in Thursday's gun battle. The commission, working under the auspices of the public prosecutor's office and newly installed Moslem police, said 75 of those killed were Moslems and 21 Europeans. All but two died of bullet wounds.

29th Division's Commander To Review Troops

CAMP A.P. HILL, Va. (AP) — Six thousand troops of the 29th Infantry Division, Virginia-Maryland National Guard, will parade Saturday in a farewell review honoring their commanding general.

Maj. Gen. William C. Purnell of Baltimore, who took command of the division in 1957, will retire this fall.

After the review, the troops — with the exception of essential duty details — will be on pass until Monday reveille after a week of strenuous tactical training. The hazards of two days of heavy rain and some 3,000 training evaluations made by a team of 20 2nd Army officers was included.

Among those in the reviewing stand with Purnell will be Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland; Maj. Gen. John S. Upham Jr., commanding general of the 2nd Army, and Lt. Gen. Milton A. Reckard, the adjutant general of Maryland; Maj. Gen. Paul M. Booth, the adjutant general of Virginia.

The dignitaries will be transported by helicopter from Camp A. P. Hill to Camp Pickett where at 9 a.m. they will review the 2,000 troops training there — elements of the division artillery and the 183rd reconnaissance squadron, a Richmond-based unit.

The official party then will fly back to Camp A. P. Hill for Gen. Purnell's review at 12:30 p.m.

The training cycle for the troops will begin again Monday, with the final week of the two-week summer encampment featuring Army training program tactical exercises at the basic unit level; Army training tests at platoon level, and 20 hours of leadership courses conducted by each of the division's five battle groups.

Washington Co. Labor Picture Much Brighter

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—The employment situation in Washington County has shown a big improvement over the gloom of a year ago. More people are working, fewer are drawing jobless pay and fewer are seeking employment.

Matthew J. White, manager of the Hagerstown office of the Maryland Employment Service, said Friday that 1,231 county residents are drawing jobless benefits, compared with 3,465 a year ago.

White also said the active file of his office shows 2,300 persons in Washington County seeking work, just half of the 4,600 a year ago. The active file includes everyone drawing compensation as well as those who have exhausted their compensation but are still seeking work.

"The picture is much better," White said, "but we should wait a little while to see how much better."

He said many smaller industrial firms in the county have increased their working force in the past year, and the aircraft industrial has recalled some workers. Mack Trucks Inc. also has moved into Hagerstown, employing 2,000 persons.

Washington County is still handing out surplus food but the demand has dropped off enough that the county is considering some of its six distribution centers.

Burundi Asks U.N. Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The central African kingdom of Burundi has applied for membership in the United Nations, it was announced Friday.

Burundi and the adjoining country of Rwanda were granted independence from Belgium on July 1. Rwanda applied for U.N. membership at once.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said Friday 14 other senators have agreed to cosponsor his proposed amendment to the Constitution to permit voluntary prayers in public schools.

Among the 14 Beall listed were Republicans Butler of Maryland, Scott of Pennsylvania and Williams of Delaware, and Democrat Byrd of West Virginia.

Beall said the Senate Judiciary Committee intends to start hearings on his amendment within the next week or two.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Mayor Hugh Cropper Jr. reported an impasse Friday in negotiations for a right-of-way needed for construction of Ocean City's $850,000 convention hall.

A group of Elkton planners had announced Thursday they hoped to start construction of the hall in September and were aiming at a June, 1963, completion date.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A cranky draw bridge at Hanover Street finally yielded Friday after being stuck a dozen feet above street level. Thousands of rush hour motorists were delayed.

The bridge was being raised at 12:45 a.m. for a tugboat but jammed while being returned to a closed position. The bridge was not reopened to traffic until after 10 a.m.

Europeans Jam Travel Offices After Oran Battle

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — Panic-stricken Europeans besieged travel offices Friday seeking transport to France following Thursday's Moslem-European conflict in which nearly 100 persons died.

The panic was further increased Friday morning with a new outbreak of firing in the European city.

A mixed Moslem-European medical commission announced 96 persons were killed and 163 wounded in Thursday's gun battle. The commission, working under the auspices of the public prosecutor's office and newly installed Moslem police, said 75 of those killed were Moslems and 21 Europeans. All but two died of bullet wounds.

29th Division's Commander To Review Troops

CAMP A.P. HILL, Va. (AP) — Six thousand troops of the 29th Infantry Division, Virginia-Maryland National Guard, will parade Saturday in a farewell review honoring their commanding general.

Maj. Gen. William C. Purnell of Baltimore, who took command of the division in 1957, will retire this fall.

After the review, the troops — with the exception of essential duty details — will be on pass until Monday reveille after a week of strenuous tactical training. The hazards of two days of heavy rain and some 3,000 training evaluations made by a team of 20 2nd Army officers was included.

Among those in the reviewing stand with Purnell will be Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Maryland; Maj. Gen. John S. Upham Jr., commanding general of the 2nd Army, and Lt. Gen. Milton A. Reckard, the adjutant general of Maryland; Maj. Gen. Paul M. Booth, the adjutant general of Virginia.

The dignitaries will be transported by helicopter from Camp A. P. Hill to Camp Pickett where at 9 a.m. they will review the 2,000 troops training there — elements of the division artillery and the 183rd reconnaissance squadron, a Richmond-based unit.

The official party then will fly back to Camp A. P. Hill for Gen. Purnell's review at 12:30 p.m.

The training cycle for the troops will begin again Monday, with the final week of the two-week summer encampment featuring Army training program tactical exercises at the basic unit level; Army training tests at platoon level, and 20 hours of leadership courses conducted by each of the division's five battle groups.

Washington Co. Labor Picture Much Brighter

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—The employment situation in Washington County has shown a big improvement over the gloom of a year ago. More people are working, fewer are drawing jobless pay and fewer are seeking employment.

Matthew J. White, manager of the Hagerstown office of the Maryland Employment Service, said Friday that 1,231 county residents are drawing jobless benefits, compared with 3,465 a year ago.

White also said the active file of his office shows 2,300 persons in Washington County seeking work, just half of the 4,600 a year ago. The active file includes everyone drawing compensation as well as those who have exhausted their compensation but are still seeking work.

"The picture is much better," White said, "but we should wait a little while to see how much better."

He said many smaller industrial firms in the county have increased their working force in the past year, and the aircraft industrial has recalled some workers. Mack Trucks Inc. also has moved into Hagerstown, employing 2,000 persons.

Washington County is still handing out surplus food but the demand has dropped off enough that the county is considering some of its six distribution centers.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The central African kingdom of Burundi has applied for membership in the United Nations, it was announced Friday.

Chincoteague Pony Penning Set For July 25

CHINCOTEAGUE, Va. (AP) — The wild pony penning, Chincoteague's annual touch of the West, is set for July 25 this year.

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce expects one of the biggest crowds in years. Motels and tourist homes in this area already are booked heavily. A carnival centered on the penning opens next Friday.

Chincoteague firemen drive the ponies across Chincoteague Bay from Assateague Island to Chincoteague, pen them, then auction them off. They use the money for expenses and for charitable projects.

Because the herd was depleted by the tidal storm of last March, the town of Chincoteague bought back some of the ponies which had been sold at previous auctions. For this reason, it could be a second sale for some of the ponies.

The origin of the ponies on Assateague is obscure. One theory is that they swam ashore after the sinking of a Spanish ship.

Moratorium On Rail Mergers Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce and Justice Departments opposed Friday a proposal for a limited moratorium on railroad mergers.

Clarence D. Martin Jr., under secretary of commerce for transportation, said "real damage would be done if the Interstate Commerce Commission was stalled in its ability to make decisions" in pending merger cases.

"Some of the railroads are in pretty serious financial condition," he told the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Similarly, Asst. Atty. Gen. Lee Loevinger, in charge of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, said Congress should not pass legislation that would "hinder or delay consideration of pending applications."

whose land had been taken for public projects.

After a lengthy investigation, the Agriculture Department declared the switch illegal and fined the 37-year-old Pecos, Tex., financier more than half a million dollars. The penalty still is under appeal within the department.

They admitted giving an Estes agent the names of McIntosh County farmers who had been replaced by public projects. The two lacked authority to transfer the cotton allotments but Estes later got 328.1 acres of McIntosh County allotments. The money Dumas and Stone received represented payment at $5 an acre—plus an unexplained 30 cents.

Both men insisted they thought they were providing only information that was available to the public.

Dumas read a prepared statement detailing his confession. Stone was so shaken that McClellan stepped in and read his statement for him.

"I am very sympathetic to both of you," McClellan said.

He pictured both men as "victims of a big, get-rich-quick scheme inimical to the interests and welfare of our country—caught in a trap."

But he said he believes both men knew what they were doing, noting that they had demanded cash and asked that records of the payment be destroyed.

W. C. Wilson Chairman Of CS Commission

William C. Wilson was sworn in as a member of the Cumberland Civil Service Commission yesterday at City Hall and automatically becomes commission chairman.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery administered the oath to Wilson, 226 Cecelia Street, who was appointed by the previous Mayor and Council to fill the unexpired six-year term of Fred E. Ryan, who resigned.

Under the commission organizational setup, members are appointed for six-year terms. At the beginning, the terms were staggered so that those of all members would not expire at the same time. It was also established that a member would be commission chairman during his last two years in office.

Since Ryan was slated to become chairman, Wilson automatically assumes that post.

The term of Ralph R. Webster on the commission also expired with the end of the previous administration last week. The present council is expected to take action on that vacancy.

The other member of the three-man commission is Francis A. Kenney who still has four years to serve.

In addition to the Civil Service appointment, the new council also is expected to act soon on the appointment of an acting comptroller to serve for a period under contract until such time as a new comptroller is hired and indoctrinated into the job.

The acting appointment has taken on increased importance since council must consider next year's budget and tax levy and needs an experienced person familiar with city financial matters. By law, the city budget and tax levy must be set by August 25.

A committee of industrial experts in the field has been screening applicants for the comptroller post and attempting to set up personal interviews. However, since time is evaporating, council must act to get the help it needs on the budget, sources said.

The other appointments due from council concern the newly-created Urban Renewal Agency which also was done by the previous administration.

FSTC Science Building Named For Gov. Tawes

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The naming of a new science building at Frostburg State Teachers College for Gov. Tawes was approved Thursday by the Board of Public Works.

Officials at the meeting couldn't help but grin when the action was taken.

Tawes' popularity at Frostburg was none too great last year after the governor endorsed a plan to convert the teachers college into a branch of the University of Maryland.

The State Board of Education, which recommended the new building be named for Tawes, successfully resisted the conversion plan.

Local Man Hurt When Brakes Fail

Failure of brakes on a truck driven by a Cumberland man caused a loss of electricity in a part of southern Washington County Thursday afternoon.

The truck operated by Allen Eugene Crabtree struck a power pole when the brakes failed as the vehicle was rounding a curve on Dam No. 4 Road.

He sustained a slight injury and was treated in Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown. Deputy Sheriffs Leister Isanogle and Donald Alton of the Washington County sheriff's office investigated.

Sealed bids will be received by the city for insurance coverage on its motorized fleet at 10 a. m., Monday, July 23, Frederick J. Hill, finance commissioner, announced today.

The bids may be either on liability or comprehensive coverages or both, Hill said.

The insurance will be effective August 1 for a one-year term.

Local Naval Center Gets Commander

Cmdr. Calhoun, teacher and football and track coach at Beall High School, Frostburg, had commanded the division for three years. He has received orders to take over the command of Naval Reserve Construction Batallion, a capacity vacated by Cmdr. Paul Arbogast, who will become the new commanding officer of the Mobilization Team.

The new Surface Division commanding officer had been serving as executive officer under Cmdr. Calhoun. He will be replaced in this position by Lt. Kenneth E. Ridder, who is employed by the Department of Assessment and Taxation of Garrett County.

Lcdr. Tiedemann, who holds a doctor of philosophy degree in chemistry, is an analytical supervisor at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

A resident of Sunset View, he came here from Baltimore early in 1961 when he became affiliated with the local mobilization team, with which he served as administration and processing officer.

The change of command ceremony was witnessed by approximately 100 civilians — family and friends of Naval Reserve personnel.

The enlisted men passed in review of Lcdr. Tiedemann soon after the change of command.

In a prepared text, the new commanding officer remarked: "Our part in being here is to do our part in defense of freedom. And, yes, of the luxuries that the sacrifices of our forefathers won for us. And our part is command of the seas, which is necessary to our security today in this age of missiles, as it has been at any time in the past.

"Our mission and task here in Cumberland is to train and be trained to take our places on the decks, in the engine rooms, on the gun mounts, or in the radio rooms of our ships.

"To Cmdr. Calhoun, we extend our thanks and appreciation for his years of loyal and faithful service to this division, and our hopes that he will find smooth seas and a fair wind in his new assignment."

Enlisting in the Navy on December 11, 1942, Lcdr. Tiedemann was commissioned an ensign after completion of Notre Dame, Ind., Midshipmen's School in October, 1944.

He served on active duty in World War II, and he saw service in the southwest Pacific with the 7th Amphibious Force aboard an LCI, an infantry landing craft.

In March, 1946, he became commanding officer at the U.S. Naval Barracks, Washington, a post he filled until August of that year when he went to inactive status.

Lcdr. Tiedemann returned to reserve status in 1950 when he began a four-year tour with Naval Reserve Research Company, Baltimore. Two of the four years were served as commanding officer.

In 1954, and until July, 1960, he was administrative and executive officer of Naval Reserve Officers School in Baltimore, immediately preceding his assignment to the Staff of Naval Reserve Surface Brigade in Baltimore.

Lcdr. Tiedemann received his Phd. in chemistry at Georgetown University, Washington. He obtained his master of science degree in chemistry from New York University, and his bachelor of science from Loyola University, Baltimore.

Married to the former Mary Theresa Sellmayer, native of Baltimore, he is the father of four children, Marie, 7, Donna, 6, (students at St. Patrick's School), Albert 4, and David, one year.

Area Dairy Farms, Plants Inspected

Ward Barstow, assistant state milk inspector and sanitarians of the Allegany County Department of Health have made inspections of two local pastuerization plants and 22 area dairy farms which hold Maryland milk permits.

Gaylord Brooks, supervising sanitarian for the department, told the commissioners that 260 milk producers in the Cumberland tri-state area ship milk here. Each of these dairy farms must be inspected and upgraded to meet U. S. Public Health and Maryland Milk Code standards, Brooks said.

Brooks said the agency is working towards an improved technique in these inspections and follow-up procedure. He also said he hopes to eventually train several sanitarians to qualify as milk inspectors and ultimately have one man responsible for this program.

Travelers Report On Long Trip

Getting adjusted to camp life by now, Cumberland's "Traveling Campers" have moved through the Bad Lands of South Dakota into Wyoming on their 3,250-mile trek to Seattle and the World's Fair.

Betsy Ebert, one of the campers reported that "we have now settled down to a reasonable facsimile of normality in our camp life.

"However, we certainly didn't start out on that foot. We roughed it under the stars the first night (out of Chicago) at Devil's Lake, Wis. (Tuesday, June 26).

"A welcoming committee consisting of park police politely informed us that we could not just 'bed down' in the middle of the night. They escorted us to another site where we tossed our sleeping bags on the ground and promptly fell asleep in our clothes.

"5 a. m. Wednesday found us sneaking out of the park to get an early start on the long trek across Minnesota. Around 9 a. m. we were again faced with the dismal prospect of car trouble. Bill McCall, our lead driver, pulled off the road frantically working his gears. No matter how hard he tried, he could only find two. We were on our way to a garage when we discovered the trouble. Buried under the accumulation of junk on the floor was Bill's razor—wedged between the shift and the seat!"

At Killen Woods State Park, Minn., the campers were welcomed with open arms. Miss Ebert wrote that they were the first campers there in over a week, and the caretaker even put his uniform on of their benefit.

Thursday night, June 28, was spent at Lake Hanson, S. D., where there was an abundance of mosquitoes.

"The next day we had our first view of the celebrated Bad Lands of South Dakota. These colorful rocky buttes rise suddenly in the middle of a vast prairie. There's no need to visit the Grand Canyon after seeing this," she said.

"Friday we also got our first glimpse of Mt. Rushmore and the fantastically beautiful Black Hills." And Miss Ebert said the group was awed by their majestic beauty.

"Friday night we stayed in a camp that had hot showers. Bill Gunter really appreciated these—he spent half the night in the wash house!"

Last Saturday was damp and cool but that didn't stop the campers from getting a good look at Mt. Rushmore, and from having buffalo burgers under the four presidents.

Saturday afternoon was spent in a laundromat where Bill Gunter put too much soap in a machine and flooded the place, Miss Ebert reported.

Saturday night they pitched tents in Spearfish, S. D., and the correspondent said "By this time even we girls were able to pitch one. Hats off to Mike Mason, our No. 1 camper, for showing us the necessary tricks.

That evening, they saw a wild west rodeo, with Stan "Tex" Kline being "carried away" as he straddled the fence with the rest of the spectators.

Asks Road Repairs

Carl Geary, Mt. Savage, appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to ask that some repairs be made to a roadway leading off State Route 36.

He said he had been repairing the road from time to time but that during heavy rainfall the roadway washes out. He was referred to Harry T. Skelly, roads supervisor.

Local Naval Center Gets Commander

Cmdr. Calhoun, teacher and football and track coach at Beall High School, Frostburg, had commanded the division for three years. He has received orders to take over the command of Naval Reserve Construction Batallion, a capacity vacated by Cmdr. Paul Arbogast, who will become the new commanding officer of the Mobilization Team.

The new Surface Division commanding officer had been serving as executive officer under Cmdr. Calhoun. He will be replaced in this position by Lt. Kenneth E. Ridder, who is employed by the Department of Assessment and Taxation of Garrett County.

Lcdr. Tiedemann, who holds a doctor of philosophy degree in chemistry, is an analytical supervisor at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

A resident of Sunset View, he came here from Baltimore early in 1961 when he became affiliated with the local mobilization team, with which he served as administration and processing officer.

The change of command ceremony was witnessed by approximately 100 civilians — family and friends of Naval Reserve personnel.

The enlisted men passed in review of Lcdr. Tiedemann soon after the change of command.

In a prepared text, the new commanding officer remarked: "Our part in being here is to do our part in defense of freedom. And, yes, of the luxuries that the sacrifices of our forefathers won for us. And our part is command of the seas, which is necessary to our security today in this age of missiles, as it has been at any time in the past.

"Our mission and task here in Cumberland is to train and be trained to take our places on the decks, in the engine rooms, on the gun mounts, or in the radio rooms of our ships.

"To Cmdr. Calhoun, we extend our thanks and appreciation for his years of loyal and faithful service to this division, and our hopes that he will find smooth seas and a fair wind in his new assignment."

Enlisting in the Navy on December 11, 1942, Lcdr. Tiedemann was commissioned an ensign after completion of Notre Dame, Ind., Midshipmen's School in October, 1944.

He served on active duty in World War II, and he saw service in the southwest Pacific with the 7th Amphibious Force aboard an LCI, an infantry landing craft.

In March, 1946, he became commanding officer at the U.S. Naval Barracks, Washington, a post he filled until August of that year when he went to inactive status.

Lcdr. Tiedemann returned to reserve status in 1950 when he began a four-year tour with Naval Reserve Research Company, Baltimore. Two of the four years were served as commanding officer.

In 1954, and until July, 1960, he was administrative and executive officer of Naval Reserve Officers School in Baltimore, immediately preceding his assignment to the Staff of Naval Reserve Surface Brigade in Baltimore.

Lcdr. Tiedemann received his Phd. in chemistry at Georgetown University, Washington. He obtained his master of science degree in chemistry from New York University, and his bachelor of science from Loyola University, Baltimore.

Married to the former Mary Theresa Sellmayer, native of Baltimore, he is the father of four children, Marie, 7, Donna, 6, (students at St. Patrick's School), Albert 4, and David, one year.

Area Dairy Farms, Plants Inspected

Ward Barstow, assistant state milk inspector and sanitarians of the Allegany County Department of Health have made inspections of two local pasteurization plants and 22 area dairy farms which hold Maryland milk permits.

Gaylord Brooks, supervising sanitarian for the department, told the commissioners that 260 milk producers in the Cumberland tri-state area ship milk here. Each of these dairy farms must be inspected and upgraded to meet U. S. Public Health and Maryland Milk Code standards, Brooks said.

Brooks said the agency is working towards an improved technique in these inspections and follow-up procedure. He also said he hopes to eventually train several sanitarians to qualify as milk inspectors and ultimately have one man responsible for this program.

Travelers Report On Long Trip

Getting adjusted to camp life by now, Cumberland's "Traveling Campers" have moved through the Bad Lands of South Dakota into Wyoming on their 3,250-mile trek to Seattle and the World's Fair.

Betsy Ebert, one of the campers reported that "we have now settled down to a reasonable facsimile of normality in our camp life.

"However, we certainly didn't start out on that foot. We roughed it under the stars the first night (out of Chicago) at Devil's Lake, Wis. (Tuesday, June 26).

"A welcoming committee consisting of park police politely informed us that we could not just 'bed down' in the middle of the night. They escorted us to another site where we tossed our sleeping bags on the ground and promptly fell asleep in our clothes.

"5 a. m. Wednesday found us sneaking out of the park to get an early start on the long trek across Minnesota. Around 9 a. m. we were again faced with the dismal prospect of car trouble. Bill McCall, our lead driver, pulled off the road frantically working his gears. No matter how hard he tried, he could only find two. We were on our way to a garage when we discovered the trouble. Buried under the accumulation of junk on the floor was Bill's razor —wedged between the shift and the seat!"

At Killen Woods State Park, Minn., the campers were welcomed with open arms. Miss Ebert wrote that they were the first campers there in over a week, and the caretaker even put his uniform on of their benefit.

Thursday night, June 28, was spent at Lake Hanson, S. D., where there was an abundance of mosquitoes.

"The next day we had our first view of the celebrated Bad Lands of South Dakota. These colorful rocky buttes rise suddenly in the middle of a vast prairie. There's no need to visit the Grand Canyon after seeing this," she said.

"Friday we also got our first glimpse of Mt. Rushmore and the fantastically beautiful Black Hills." And Miss Ebert said the group was awed by their majestic beauty.

"Friday night we stayed in a camp that had hot showers. Bill Gunter really appreciated these—he spent half the night in the wash house!"

Last Saturday was damp and cool but that didn't stop the campers from getting a good look at Mt. Rushmore, and from having buffalo burgers under the four presidents.

Saturday afternoon was spent in a laundromat where Bill Gunter put too much soap in a machine and flooded the place, Miss Ebert reported.

Saturday night they pitched tents in Spearfish, S. D., and the correspondent said "By this time even we girls were able to pitch one. Hats off to Mike Mason, our No. 1 camper, for showing us the necessary tricks.

That evening, they saw a wild west rodeo, with Stan "Tex" Kline being "carried away" as he straddled the fence with the rest of the spectators.

Asks Road Repairs

Carl Geary, Mt. Savage, appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to ask that some repairs be made to a roadway leading off State Route 36.

He said he had been repairing the road from time to time but that during heavy rainfall the roadway washes out. He was referred to Harry T. Skelly, roads supervisor.

The marriage of the former Miss Barbara Green to Mr. Talley was solemnized July 8, 1902 in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Wunder officiating. The couple has seven children, 24 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

Club Fair Schedule Announced

A schedule of demonstrations by Homemakers clubs at the Cumberland Fair has been arranged with 23 clubs participating. One 4-H club may have the other time.

Each day during the Fair, demonstrations will be given from 3 until 5 p. m.; 5 until 7, and 7 until 9 o'clock. The demonstrations are to show the general public what homemakers can do and the many areas covered in the homemaker program. Besides being simple and timely, they show how to do something, not just display a finished product.

August 21 from 3 until 5 the Bedford Road Homemakers and Midland Homemakers will give their demonstrations; from 5 until 7 the Frostburg Homemakers and Cresap Homemakers; and 7 until 9, the Eckhart Homemakers and Lonaconing Homemakers.

Class To Aid Indonesian

Tooth-Brushing Tile

An old toothbrush is useful in washing the grout lines between the ceramic tile in your bathroom. Usually all that is needed to clean the tile and the lines between them is an occasional sudsing with soap and water. But if hard water deposits or splashed soap has been allowed to stand for long periods, it may be necessary to use a stiff brush and scouring powder to return the installation to its original brightness.

Fun Class Is Added To 4-H Camp This Year

Seventy-three girls from Allegany County and approximately 25 from Garrett County, not including leaders and staff, have enrolled in 4-H Girls' Camp, Miss Mary P. Wise reports.

The camp will be held at the 4-H Recreation Center, Pleasant Valley July 21 to July 28. Cabin leaders will check in during the afternoon of the 21st. Other campers will not go until Sunday afternoon.

Two innovations this year are a "fun class" and a special schedule for Friday.

A "sports-arama" has been planned for Friday morning; a cabin cookout for noon and a "swimerama" for the afternoon. The classes Monday through Thursday will include crafts, a class in Indian lore; swimming, rifle, nature, cookouts and sports.

Tribe leaders will be for the Nanticoke, Kay Frances Morgan and Linda Maguire; Cayuga, Mary Baker and Jean Robinette; Seneca, Linda Oursler and Anne Gibson, from Garrett county; and Mohawk, Joan Miltenberger, Rheba James.

If you're tired of flimsy coasters which become waterlogged and worthless, try using colorful glazed ceramic wall tiles. There are many colors to choose from, and the real tile will never stain.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Friday evening there was a movie I wanted to see so I went by myself. (I'm a girl, 16.) As I walked into the theater a clean-cut man (I would guess his age to be about 25) smiled at me, I kept right on walking.

A few minutes later he was sitting next to me. He offered me some popcorn, started a conversation and we exchanged a few remarks.

When the movie was over he asked me if I'd like a soda and I said yes. His car was parked in a lot nearby and we drove to a little cafe. It was all very respectable. He didn't try to get fresh or anything. When he took me home I gave him my phone number.

My mother was waiting on the porch and saw me get out of the car. She asked me who the man was and I told her how we met. She almost took my head off.

I think a girl 16 is old enough to pick her own friends, don't you? Please help me. I'm in deep trouble at home. — ROSE

DEAR FRIEND: A Rose by any other name is still a pick-up when she gets into a car with a stranger. He may have looked "clean-cut," but many a decent-looking guy has been known to hit a girl over the head with a beer bottle — or worse yet.

I am opposed to girls taking up with strangers any time and any place. You say he appeared to be about 25. It just may be that he was 35 — with a wife and six kids.

You're home free on this one, Toots. Consider yourself lucky and promise never again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been dating a young man who is from another city. He moved here a few months ago to take a job. Two weeks ago I invited him to have dinner in our home so he could become better acquainted with my family.

I have two brothers who are a couple of little brats. They are 10 and 12 years old, have no manners whatever and I'm really ashamed of them. The boys came to the table with dirty fingernails, uncombed hair, and they did far too much talking.

I haven't heard from the fellow since that day. Do you think, perhaps he got a bad impression of my family and this ended our friendship? — HUMILIATED

DEAR HUMILIATED: If this IS the reason the fellow has not called, then he's for the birds.

Your mother should have taught her sons better manners for their sake, not to impress company. In any event, the behavior of your brothers should not have made one particle of difference to the young man.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow 54 years old. My husband passed away seven months ago. He was a difficult man to live with but I kept my troubles to myself. More than once I told friends and relatives that the black eye and the cuts on my lip were from household accidents.

A man I've known for many years has asked me to go out with him. His wife was a fine woman and I knew her before she died four years ago. Would it be sacrilegious to be seen with a gentleman only seven months after my husband's death? My sisters say I ought to be ashamed of myself for even considering such a thing. They claim I should stay in mourning for a full year.

What is your advice? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Mourning what? The shiners and the fat lip?

It's how you feel that counts, and if you feel like going out — go.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Oily Skin Erupts From Many Causes

What prompts an oily complexion to be that way? Overactive oil glands are, of course, the prime movers in making skin that looks sallow and greasy, blemish-prone skin that turns orange under makeup. But there are other causes to consider if you want to be able to control the condition.

1. Improper diet is often to blame, especially one that's top-heavy in carbohydrates and fried and fatty foods. Concentrating your appetite on fresh fruits, vegetables and meats will help. And drink lots of water!

2. A sluggish system, indicated by poor elimination, is another co-culprit. Taking some fresh fruit at bedtime is one step toward curing this problem.

3. A depressed mental attitude can trigger an oily skin into "blossoming out." This means a big effort of the will to promote a relaxed mental attitude. Work on improving your sense of humor!

4. Poor breathing habits can be partially blamed, too. Work on ways to bring more purifying oxygen into your lungs.

5. Lack of exercise can result in a lazy complexion. Merely taking a good brisk walk can step up blood circulation. Coupling this refresher with deep-breathing offers double-stimulation for skin improvement.

6. The wrong make-up can make an oily skin worse.

Those of you who have read my pamphlet on the "Secrets of Skin Care" know that the key to the external treatment of oiliness is CLEANLINESS. The pamphlet contains a detailed explanation of the proper daily care I recommend.

Readers wanting copies of this pamphlet may write to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. They can expect their copies to arrive in the mails within three weeks.

In following my skin care suggestions for oily skin, you will find that a soft shaving brush helps in working up lather. Rely on your own finger pads to massage the oiliest areas. Soft water helps, too. You can cut down the mineral content of hard water by adding two teaspoons of ordinary water-softener to the basin.

Plain air and sunshine and carefully tended sunlamp treatments can have a beneficial effect on those highly-productive glands. And, to encourage blackheads to loosen, try steaming the face over a basin of very hot water.

It's best to avoid lanolin-base cosmetics when you have oily skin. Stick to cake-type base and cake-rouge.

TO MARK ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Henry Raymond Talley will be honor guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Russell, 313 Franklin Street, at a family party tomorrow. It will be celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary, and Mrs. Talley's 84th birthday. The marriage of the former Miss Barbara Green to Mr. Talley was solemnized July 8, 1902 in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Wunder officiating. The couple has seven children, 24 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

Club Fair Schedule Announced

A schedule of demonstrations by Homemakers clubs at the Cumberland Fair has been arranged with 23 clubs participating. One 4-H club may have the other time.

Each day during the Fair, demonstrations will be given from 3 until 5 p. m.; 5 until 7, and 7 until 9 o'clock. The demonstrations are to show the general public what homemakers can do and the many areas covered in the homemaker program. Besides being simple and timely, they show how to do something, not just display a finished product.

August 21 from 3 until 5 the Bedford Road Homemakers and Midland Homemakers will give their demonstrations; from 5 until 7 the Frostburg Homemakers and Cresap Homemakers; and 7 until 9, the Eckhart Homemakers and Lonaconing Homemakers.

August 22, LaVale and Midlothian; McCoole and Bowling Green; Progressive Young Women and Lonaconing Women.

Tooth-Brushing Tile

An old toothbrush is useful in washing the grout lines between the ceramic tile in your bathroom. Usually all that is needed to clean the tile and the lines between them is an occasional sudsing with soap and water. But if hard water deposits or splashed soap has been allowed to stand for long periods, it may be necessary to use a stiff brush and scouring powder to return the installation to its original brightness.

Fun Class Is Added To 4-H Camp This Year

Seventy-three girls from Allegany County and approximately 25 from Garrett County, not including leaders and staff, have enrolled in 4-H Girls' Camp, Miss Mary P. Wise reports.

The camp will be held at the 4-H Recreation Center, Pleasant Valley July 21 to July 28. Cabin leaders will check in during the afternoon of the 21st. Other campers will not go until Sunday afternoon.

Two innovations this year are a "fun class" and a special schedule for Friday.

Colorful Coasters

If you're tired of flimsy coasters which become waterlogged and worthless, try using colorful glazed ceramic wall tiles. There are many colors to choose from, and the real tile will never stain.

Mechanical damage, not decay, is the chief reason for replacing railroad ties.

Mr. and Mrs. John Russell Shipe, Spring Gap, entertained for their grandson, Jesse Junior Shipe, in celebration of his birthday. He is the son of Mrs. Emmadale Davis Shipe and the late Jesse E. Shipe.

Approximately 35 guests attended.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Friday evening there was a movie I wanted to see so I went by myself. (I'm a girl, 16.) As I walked into the theater a clean-cut man (I would guess his age to be about 25) smiled at me. I kept right on walking.

A few minutes later he was sitting next to me. He offered me some popcorn, started a conversation and we exchanged a few remarks.

When the movie was over he asked me if I'd like a soda and I said yes. His car was parked in a lot nearby and we drove to a little cafe. It was all very respectable. He didn't try to get fresh or anything. When he took me home I gave him my phone number.

My mother was waiting on the porch and saw me get out of the car. She asked me who the man was and I told her how we met. She almost took my head off.

I think a girl 16 is old enough to pick her own friends, don't you? Please help me. I'm in deep trouble at home. — ROSE

DEAR FRIEND: A Rose by any other name is still a pick-up when she gets into a car with a stranger. He may have looked "clean-cut," but many a decent-looking guy has been known to hit a girl over the head with a beer bottle — or worse yet.

I am opposed to girls taking up with strangers any time and any place. You say he appeared to be about 25. It just may be that he was 35 — with a wife and six kids.

You're home free on this one, Toots. Consider yourself lucky and promise never again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been dating a young man who is from another city. He moved here a few months ago to take a job. Two weeks ago I invited him to have dinner in our home so he could become better acquainted with my family.

I have two brothers who are a couple of little brats. They are 10 and 12 years old, have no manners whatever and I'm really ashamed of them. The boys came to the table with dirty fingernails, uncombed hair, and they did far too much talking.

I haven't heard from the fellow since that day. Do you think, perhaps he got a bad impression of my family and this ended our friendship? — HUMILIATED

DEAR HUMILIATED: If this IS the reason the fellow has not called, then he's for the birds.

Your mother should have taught her sons better manners for their sake, not to impress company. In any event, the behavior of your brothers should not have made one particle of difference to the young man.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow 54 years old. My husband passed away seven months ago. He was a difficult man to live with but I kept my troubles to myself. More than once I told friends and relatives that the black eye and the cuts on my lip were from household accidents.

A man I've known for many years has asked me to go out with him. His wife was a fine woman and I knew her before she died four years ago. Would it be sacrilegious to be seen with a gentleman only seven months after my husband's death? My sisters say I ought to be ashamed of myself for even considering such a thing. They claim I should stay in mourning for a full year.

What is your advice? — UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Mourning what? The shiners and the fat lip?

It's how you feel that counts, and if you feel like going out — go.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

Oily Skin Erupts From Many Causes

What prompts an oily complexion to be that way? Overactive oil glands are, of course, the prime movers in making skin that looks sallow and greasy, blemish-prone skin that turns orange under makeup. But there are other causes to consider if you want to be able to control the condition.

1. Improper diet is often to blame, especially one that's top-heavy in carbohydrates and fried and fatty foods. Concentrating your appetite on fresh fruits, vegetables and meats will help. And drink lots of water!

2. A sluggish system, indicated by poor elimination, is another co-culprit. Taking some fresh fruit at bedtime is one step toward curing this problem.

3. A depressed mental attitude can trigger an oily skin into "blossoming out." This means a big effort of the will to promote a relaxed mental attitude. Work on improving your sense of humor!

4. Poor breathing habits can be partially blamed, too. Work on ways to bring more purifying oxygen into your lungs.

5. Lack of exercise can result in a lazy complexion. Merely taking a good brisk walk can step up blood circulation. Coupling this refresher with deep-breathing offers double-stimulation for skin improvement.

6. The wrong make-up can make an oily skin worse.

Those of you who have read my pamphlet on the "Secrets of Skin Care" know that the key to the external treatment of oiliness is CLEANLINESS. The pamphlet contains a detailed explanation of the proper daily care I recommend.

Readers wanting copies of this pamphlet may write to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. They can expect their copies to arrive in the mails within three weeks.

In following my skin care suggestions for oily skin, you will find that a soft shaving brush helps in working up lather. Rely on your own finger pads to massage the oiliest areas. Soft water helps, too. You can cut down the mineral content of hard water by adding two teaspoons of ordinary water-softener to the basin.

Plain air and sunshine and carefully tended sunlamp treatments can have a beneficial effect on those highly-productive glands. And, to encourage blackheads to loosen, try steaming the face over a basin of very hot water.

It's best to avoid lanolin-base cosmetics when you have oily skin. Stick to cake-type base and cake-rouge.

Dad and Butch are both getting a big kick out of this. If Butch catches a fish — even a minnow — it's hard to say who will be the prouder.

We suspect, though, that it will be Dad. He'd probably give this little man all the fish in the ocean, if he could!

He is giving him things that really count. Good clean fun and happiness, a sense of sportsmanship, and that special man-to-man bond between father and son. And because his son means so much to him, Dad takes Butch to the services of their church each week.

Boys have to do a lot of growing to get to be men. It takes a lot to keep them growing the right way. Weekly church and church school attendance is a big step forward. Don't keep your child from taking it!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

China Admits Errors In Religious Policy

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China has announced that it will maintain its versin of religious freedom for a long time to come. It conceded, holever, that it has been guilty of errors in its religious policy.

These declarations were made by Chang Chih-yi, deputy director of the Communist party's united work front department, in the April issue of Nationalities Issue, a translation of which has just been made available here. They were part of a restatement of the Chinese line on religion.

Chang noted that the principal religions in China are Catholicism, Islam, Buddhism, Taoism, and Christianity, by which he presumably meant Protestantism.

"These five different religions not only have a long history but will exist for quite a long period of time to come after the establishment of a Socialist society or even a Communist society," he said.

The Chinese Communist policy towards religion, he indicated, is to recognize its impact on the masses and seek to use it for its own ends.

To do so, it has placed religion under patriotic control and imprisoned priests and missionaries, both Chinese and foreign, who resisted this move.

The purged religions which have emerged have been given at least surface fredom. The churches, mosques and temples remain open, in some cases they have been repaired or reconstructed, and religious believers have been free to attend them.

Chang, whose department is concerned with minorities, did not specify what mistakes had been made.

He made it clear, however, that these errors did not include the imprisonment of priests and others accused of counterrevolutionary activity.

Dad and Butch are both getting a big kick out of this. If Butch catches a fish — even a minnow — it's hard to say who will be the prouder.

We suspect, though, that it will be Dad. He'd probably give this little man all the fish in the ocean, if he could!

He is giving him things that really count. Good clean fun and happiness, a sense of sportsmanship, and that special man-to-man bond between father and son. And because his son means so much to him, Dad takes Butch to the services of their church each week.

Boys have to do a lot of growing to get to be men. It takes a lot to keep them growing the right way. Weekly church and church school attendance is a big step forward. Don't keep your child from taking it!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

China Admits Errors In Religious Policy

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China has announced that it will maintain its versin of religious freedom for a long time to come. It conceded, holever, that it has been guilty of errors in its religious policy.

These declarations were made by Chang Chih-yi, deputy director of the Communist party's united work front department, in the April issue of Nationalities Issue, a translation of which has just been made available here. They were part of a restatement of the Chinese line on religion.

Chang noted that the principal religions in China are Catholicism, Islam, Buddhism, Taoism, and Christianity, by which he presumably meant Protestantism.

"These five different religions not only have a long history but will exist for quite a long period of time to come after the establishment of a Socialist society or even a Communist society," he said.

The Chinese Communist policy towards religion, he indicated, is to recognize its impact on the masses and seek to use it for its own ends.

To do so, it has placed religion under patriotic control and imprisoned priests and missionaries, both Chinese and foreign, who resisted this move.

The purged religions which have emerged have been given at least surface fredom. The churches, mosques and temples remain open, in some cases they have been repaired or reconstructed, and religious believers have been free to attend them.

Chang, whose department is concerned with minorities, did not specify what mistakes had been made.

He made it clear, however, that these errors did not include the imprisonment of priests and others accused of counterrevolutionary activity.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — The drama Patricia Neal is playing in "Hud Bannon" with Paul Newman is faded compared to the drama she lives through every day.

Her heart is in England where her three-year-old son Theo is recuperating from his seventh major brain operation. He was nearly killed two years ago when a taxi hit his baby carriage, hurling him across the street.

But Pat keeps her heart up as high as her chin. "Theo is beginning to walk," she says proudly, "just a few steps at a time but it is so encouraging to Raoul (her husband, brilliant writer Raoul Dahl) and me. Although our picture isn't nearly completed, I'm flying back soon to be with my darlings."

If the Florida charmers who are dating Cliff Robertson while he's there shooting "PT-109" think they are going to get any publicity out of it, they can guess again.

"Don't you think JFK dated during his days in the Navy?" I couldn't help kidding Cliff.

"Not on my time," he grinned.

Say Brandon De Wilde's name to me and I never think of him as a day older than he was as the sprig in "Member of the Wedding." So you could have knocked me down with a mosquito wing when I learned he has a serious romance going.

Well, I suppose when a young man is 20 years old, his thoughts "turn gently, etc." — and Brandon's have turned to thoughts of lovely Susan Maw, a Danish pastry, who has flown here with her brother to visit Brandon and his parents for a week.

Susan is scheduled to enter Sarah Lawrence, Radcliffe or one of the other exclusive eastern schools in the fall, which is a lot closer than Denmark for De Wilde to do his courtin'.

Can you see Buddy Hackett as the cockney father in "My Fair Lady?" Buddy can.

The other night at a party at the home of Sid Caesar, Buddy and Jack Warner were both guests. And at the psychological moment when the Warner Brothers boss was relaxed and receptive, Buddy broke into his cockney rendition of "Get Me To the Church on Time." Then he asked Warner if there was any good reason why he couldn't play the character in the musical when it comes to the movies. Of course, there's many a slip between casting at a party and signing a contract at a studio. Meanwhile, Buddy's back on Stanley Kramer's "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad World" in Palm Springs.

Talked with Bruce Cabot who is just back from a swing of the major cities plugging "Hatari!," his thriller with John Wayne. Along with Bruce on the jaunt were Herb Steinberg, Paramount's publicity chief, Elsa Martinelli and Pat Wayne (John's son).

"It's one of those pictures you don't feel ashamed to walk out on the stage and take a bow after whole families, including kids, have seen it," reports Bruce.

I asked him about his love life, which used to be considerable. "Haven't time for that now. I'm off to Honolulu for 'Donovan's Reef' also with Duke Wayne. But," he laughed, "I may just check the beach at Waikiki."

Marilyn Monroe acts scared to death that someone is going to ask her about her legal hassle with 20th over "Something's Got To Give." An actor she trusts and likes called the other evening to ask her to have a quiet dinner with him and was surprised when she suddenly hung up the receiver in his ear without even a word.

If all this is due to her lawyer cautioning her not to say a word —she's taking him literally. It's too bad that her troubles came along just when she was beginning to blossom out, go to parties, even planning to give a few herself in her new home. MM has crawled back in her shell again and hardly sees anyone but her friend and press agent Pat (Lady) Newcomb.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Those newest candid shots of Richard Burton and Liz out of Europe (they're kissing, as usual) reveal there's getting to be more and more of him for her to be "madly in love" with. Such blubber around the middle. Those Marc Antony togas do a lot more for Burton than swim trunks.

Ethel Merman, Milton Berle and others of the "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" have been working in Palm Springs so long, they're participating in civic enterprises like it was their home town. Ethel and Miltie journeyed up to Yucca Valley to be present at the ceremonies honoring millionairess Elsinore Machris' donation of $25,000 for wing on the Hi-Desert Memorial Hospital. Ethel presented Elsinore with the plaque and Milton draped Mrs. M. with leis flown in from Honolulu.

It was a 4th of July boy for the Leslie Stevens (he wrote "Marriage-Go-Round"). The happy father tells me the baby is actually Leslie Stevens V, the fifth male to be named that in succession. "But that sounds so much like one of the French 'Louis,' I think we'll just call him junior."

Pat Boone had to cancel out two very lucrative weeks in Mexico City to wing to London for added scenes for "The Main Attraction."

It was one good musician listening to another when Les Brown dropped by Robbs-Century to hear Johnny Ricardo liltin' Latin music.

Hugh O'Brian rented a house with a barbeque pit (rare) in London and tossed on the steaks for Noel Coward, Peter Sellers, Dolores Hart, Pamela Tiffin, the latter two in his movie "Champagne Flight."

Old Friends Meet At Sesquicentennial

Cancer Unit Gets Funds From Bowlers

The Allegany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society received $271 in contributions during Bowl Down Cancer Week.

An estimated 36,000 Maryland bowlers took part in the event and more than $18,000 was collected for the Society's Maryland division.

The event was sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America and two bowling equipment manufacturers, AMF and Brunswick.

Disabled Vets Ask State Tax Exemptions

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Delegates attending the state convention of the Disabled American Veterans adopted a resolution Friday asking for exemptions from the state income tax.

The resolution called for exemptions of from $2,000 to $5,000, depending upon the disability of the veteran. Backers said 30 other states had such exemptions.

A record 225 delegates are attending the 18th annual convention, which continues through Sunday when officers will be elected and installed and other resolutions adopted.

Marriage Licenses

Robert Russell Kesner, Wiley Ford, W. Va., and Lois Wilda McDonald, 219 Pear Street.

Viet Nam Airlift

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — U.S. helicopters and transport planes flew 1,000 South Vietnamese troops into battle Friday against a Communist guerrilla headquarters village west of Saigon and a guerrilla concentration to the south.

Bandit Shoots Boy, Grocery Proprietor

BALTIMORE (AP) — A jittery holdup man shot a 15-year-old boy and the proprietor of a grocery store Friday. The bandit, who escaped, got only $9 in the robbery.

The boy, Claude Garrison, underwent a six-hour operation to remove the bullet. Authorities at University Hospital said the youth, who was shot in the back, was in serious condition.

Samuel Bernstein of Randallstown, the proprietor, was held at the hospital for observation after treatment of a shoulder wound and a head cut received when the bandit slugged him.

The backbone of the camel is as straight as the backbone of a horse. The hump is mainly fat.

Space Role Of The Military

A quiet, but significant, shift in America's space program has been accomplished in the last few months which has brought the Defense Department back from virtual obscurity and given it a significant—if not commanding—role in future space developments.

From the inception of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the civil agency has enjoyed a virtual monopoly of space planning and rocket probes. With the exception of a few obviously necessary military activities, such as a satellite detection and warning system, the Pentagon has been assigned little more than back-up chores for NASA operations.

Manned orbiting satellites designed to overtake and disarm a nuclear warhead-armed vehicle is one Air Force goal now receiving active support. Others undoubtedly will follow as the total space effort begins to soar in earnest. From $1.5 billion spent in space activity only last year, the budget is expected to grow to $3.7 billion in 1963 and nearly $7 billion by 1964.

Much of this increase will reflect growth in military space programs. These programs were postponed or restricted during the years of fruitless disarmament discussions with Moscow. Even now, when it appears the U. S. may be on the threshold of sharing the fruits of its space explorations with the rest of the world, a discernible turn toward the development of military satellites and space rocketry belies any great confidence in an East-West space partnership.

It would appear the President has become aware the military opportunities in space—available to friend and foe alike—have not been sufficiently developed or guarded against.

Xmas And Chanuka

The Supreme Court having voted 6-1 to eliminate God from the public schools may have taken the joy out of the lives of children by removing religious holidays which are so meaningful. Christmas is such a joyous holiday for children, but has to do with God and, according to Mr. Justice Black, God is forbidden in tax-supported schools.

Chanuka is a Jewish holiday and is often coincident with Christmas and Jewish children enjoy its ceremonials and the gifts that are given. It has to do with a heroic character, Judas Maccabeus, who cleansed the Temple of impurities and established a dynasty.

There are other holidays, such as Good Friday and Yom Kippur which are celebrated during the school year. I presume that these will be interdicted by the decision of the learned Mr. Justice Black whose great anti-God decision contains not one reference to precedent or American tradition. Unfortunately, for demonstration purposes, my children are all grown or married or I should have them stand up each morning and silently say the undenominational prayer which Justice Black's decision forbids, but I would have them think the words "And God have mercy on the Supreme Court of the United States."

Perhaps some Justice will want to abolish the Chaplain Service in the United States armed forces. He would prefer perhaps that a boy dying on the field of battle pray to a politician, as to such a character as Khrushchev, rather than to God.

It is significant that Mr. Justice Black should have written his Godless decision within a month of the centennial of Abraham Lincoln's signature on the law which authorized the appointment as chaplain in the United States Army of any "regularly ordained minister of some religious denomination." Heretofore, the Chaplain Service was limited to "some Christian denomination." The law was signed by Lincoln on July 17, 1862, and since then most of the religious groups in the United States have contributed chaplains to our armed forces and have performed so great a service that all the NATO countries have become interested in this service and have sent delegates to the United States to study its methods.

In passing, it is worthwhile to inform Lawrence Roth, the author of the troubles that produced the outrageous Black Decision, that as a result of the July 17, 1862 Lincoln signature, Rabbi Jacob Frankel of Congregation Rodelph Shalom of Philadelphia, on September 18, 1862, became the first Jewish chaplain commissioned by the American government. The first Jewish chaplain to be wounded in action was Rabbi Ferdinand Sarner who fought at Gettysburg.

I only mention the Jewish chaplains lest Roth imagine that he has performed some worthy service to anyone. The Jews suffer greatly because of nonreligious, ethnological Jews of whose conduct the Jews cannot rid themselves. An ethnological Jew is one who was born of Jewish parents but who has no other Jewish affiliations or affections.

It is like the creature, Soblen, who not only acted the spy, but robbed a dead brother of his passport, skipped bail, leaving his guarantors with a loss of money, his wife in despair, and his lawyer without words. But his greatest crime was to go to Israel. He might have gone to Brazil or to Hell. He gratuitously involved Israel in his crimes, both legal and moral, and brought notoriety to a country upon which he can have no claim. Israel cannot possibly give such a creature sanctuary, not even if he dies a thousand deaths, for he is a traitor to all that is holy and decent. Those who aided him in his escape should be ferreted out and punished. It might be a suitable task for U. S. Attorney Morgenthau in New York who needs to prove himself to be more than a political appointee.

Mr. Justice Black and his five supporters in the Supreme Court have apparently no sense of tradition and history. It only confirms what has long been believed, namely, that the present Court is without intellectual leadership in the absence of Justice Felix Frankfurter. Had Frankfurter been around to argue down the Godless arguments, surely some of the five concurring judges would not have turned their backs upon him. Frankfurter would not have gone along with the nonsense of depriving children of an undenominational prayer to God. But Mr. Justice Frankfurter is sick and did not partake of this decision. Too bad.

Concealed Sugar Subsidies Cost Consumers Half Billion A Year

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Here are things you may not know about sugar when you drink your morning coffee: Sugar subsidies cost you and other consumers about half a billion dollars a year. This doesn't include the cost of producing the sugar—just the subsidy . . . It's a concealed subsidy, as Rep. Harold Cooley, (D-N. C.), great friend of the sugar lobby, frankly admits: "If we do away with quotas and do away premiums, the only thing we would have would be payments to the domestic producers, and those payments would stand up like a sore thumb and be difficult for us to justify."

Sugar subsidy money doesn't go to small farmers, but to the big outfits. The U. S. Sugar Corp. got the biggest subsidy in 1960—$775,121. It was topped only by Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company which got $980,691 from the U. S. taxpayers . . . Other big subsidy beneficiaries were Oahu Sugar Company—$500,089; Pioneer Mills—$413,127; Waialua Agricultural Co.—$466,210—all Hawaiian; also Luce and Co.—$590,661; Brewer P. R. Inc.—$413,530; and Sucession J. Serralles—$370,903—All in Puerto Rico . . . On the U. S. mainland, the biggest subsidies went to Okeelanta Sugar Refinery in Louisiana—$351,403; the South Coast Corp.—$303,971; Southdown, Inc.—$186,270. There were a score of other subsidy payments over $50,000 each to other corporations—hardly any to individual farmers.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Two-thirds of the sugar purchased by American firms is by Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, Wrigley's Spearmint, National Biscuit, Hershey Chocolate, plus other industrial users. Their profits range from 7 per cent to 30 per cent . . . Despite the U. S. government subsidy—supposed to guarantee price stabilization—the price you pay for sugar fluctuates like the thermometer on the banks of the Potomac. In 1961, the world market price was the lowest in years, but U. S. retail sugar prices rose to their highest level sincce 1934 when the sugar subsidy act was passed. Average price per pound in 1961 was 11.8 cents, an increase of 17 per cent from 10 years ago.

Because the U. S. sugar market pays a premium of about $56 a ton over outside prices, this market is the most highly prized in the world, and Congress for the past two weeks has been engaged in carving it up. It did a botch-work job, partly because Rep. Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, postponed the sugar bill until the last minute. Some Congressmen suspected Cooley was purposedly delaying so that the Senate would not have a chance to rectify House mistakes—Sen. Harry Byrd, (D-Va.), called the sugar bill the worst in history . . . However, Cooley was busy in North Carolina for several weeks trying a law case that would have earned him a law fee of about 200,000. This has nothing to do with the salary he is supposed to earn as a Congressman in Washington. President Kennedy at one point got so worried that he telephoned Cooley in North Carolina asking him to come back to Washington. Cooley did return—after he lost his lawsuit—but left almost immediately for Rome, Italy, to attend an Inter-Parliamentary Union meeting—at the taxpayers' expense.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Because Cooley comes from North Carolina, several foreign countries hired North Carolinians as lobbyists to get them better sugar quotas. There's nothing illegal about lobbying. It's a right guaranteed in the Constitution, and many highly respected attorneys appear before Congress as lobbyists. Among them, in this case, was Ralph Gardner, whose father was the much-loved late governor of North Carolina. Ralph represented the small island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. Fee—$11,121 . . . Wesley E. McDonald, another North Carolinian, represented Panam. Fee—$1,500 . . . Another highly respected lobbyist, former Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, represented Mexico. Fee—$25,000. He helped to write the 1934 sugar act and knows more about sugar than almost anyone in Washington . . . Rocco C. Siciliano, former able assistant to President Eisenhower, represented Salvador. Fee—$15,000. . . . John Duncan, Vice President of the W. R. Grace Line Company, which owns sugar properties in Peru, represented that country but received no fee . . . James Riddell, associated with Donald Dawson, former aide to President Truman, represented India. Fee—Contingent on success . . . The only country without a lobbyist in Washington was Argentina, which, significantly, ended up with no sugar quota. Apparently it pays to hire lobbyists.

Anyone Else?

During the sugar bill hearings, Sen. Paul Douglas, (D-Ill.), facetiously asked: "Is there anyone here from the New Hebrides, the Canary Islands, Azores, Tananarive, Tristan da Cunha, Christmas Island, Norfolk Island, Easter Island who might like to testify?"

Added Sen. Gene McCarthy, (D-Minn.), "Speak now or forever hold your peace."

Finally, Good News On Balance Of Payments

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

On Tuesday afternoon, President Kennedy met at the White House with Secretary of the Treasury Dillon, Secretary of Defense McNamara, and Deputy Secretary Roswell Gilpatric for a long bout of cheese paring.

The cheese to be pared was the one that most worries the U. S. business community and the banking fraternity all over the world—namely, the persistent deficit in the U. S. balance of payments, which has caused the U. S. heavy gold losses of recent years.

Much too little attention has been paid to the long, hard effort to shrink the payments deficit that began when President Kennedy took office. In particular, net defense spending overseas has already been heavily reduced, both by American economies and by arrangements for offsetting arms purchases in this country by the Germans and others.

To be specific, the rate of net dollar outflow for defense, which was $2.7 billion per annum in the last Eisenhower year, has already shrunk greatly and will drop to $1.6 billion per annum in 1963. At Tuesday's White House meeting, a target of $600 million of additional shrinkage was set, to be attained over a further period of two years. "It will be a painful target to reach," said one defense official, "but we believe we can reach it—and without penalizing individual servicemen or their families."

Reaching the target will require spending some more defense dollars here in the U. S., in order to cut still further into dollar outflow abroad. Even so, what is being achieved is remarkable, and all the more so at a time when the increases of U. S. defense effort, both in Viet Nam and in Europe, might have been expected to send the outflow of defense dollars soaring sky-high.

All this is particularly interesting, moreover, because it suggests that the business men and the economists may eventually have to re-examine several of their current rubber-stamp slogans, about the insurmountable "change in the U. S. world position," the hopelessness of the "fundamental payments deficit problem," and so on. The record suggests that re-thinking may be in order rather soon.

To be specific, the payments deficit in the last Eisenhower year was $3.9 billion. In that year, the net military dollar outflow was $2.7 billion, and the net outflow for the foreign aid program was $1.3 billion. In other words, even in this worst year, the U. S. economy traded on even terms with the rest of the world, and the payments deficit was almost exactly equal to the sum in dollars spent overseas for defense and foreign aid.

In President Kennedy's first year in office, the payments deficit dropped by over $1 billion, to just under $2.5 billion. But since cheese paring is a slow, long term business, the outflow of defense dollars remained at a level of $2.6 billion, and the outflow for economic aid was unchanged at $1.3 billion.

This year, the improvement is very much more dramatic. The first quarter's payment deficit was $465 million; and the deficit for the second quarter will be under $200 million. Byt the end of this year, moreover, the rate of outflow of defense dollars will have dropped more than $1 billion per annum below the rate in the last Eisenhower year; and the rate of dollar outflow for foreign aid will also be reduced, it is hoped, by about $300 million.

Some of the reduction in this year's payments deficit has been achieved by one shot operations, like advance repayment of earlier U. S. loans to allied governments. Nonetheless, the total payments deficit has plainly shrunk in an important manner, judging by the figures in the two first two quarters. This result has been partly attained by government-sponsored dollar economies, resulting from such moves as the changes in the tourists' import allowances. Simultaneously with the shrinkage in the over-all payments deficit, there is a massive shrinkage in the rate of dollar outflow to pay for government activities overseas. The payments deficit, therefore, is dwindling towards a balance.

This is just the result that Secretary of the Treasury Dillon has been stoutly predicting for 1963, despite the gloom that prevails in the business community. Maybe the gloom has not been altogether unconstructive. The President has certainly renewed his attack on the problem of the payments deficit with extra vigor, since he began to consult business leaders like Robert A. Lovett, John J. McCloy, and David Rockefeller.

Furthermore, the gloom of the business men will be unhappily justified if the general trade balance turns sour, and thus cancels the effect of the governmental cuts in dollar outflow. Yet the outlook is clearly far better than has been generally supposed.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CROSSED WIRE — Rep. H. R. Gross, Iowa Republican, has become the House's most vocal champion of economy in government. He's constantly demanding to know "where's the money coming from" to finance government projects.

The other day, the House faced an acrimonious debate on raising the debt limit, an action universally opposed by advocates of economy.

Knowing he was heading into a tough and close fight, House Democratic whip Hale Boggs sent telegrams to all Democrats urging them to be on hand throughout the day. As sometimes happens, one of the telegrams was misdirected to Gross.

When debate opened, Gross solemnly arose and read the telegram; then just as deadpan assured Boggs and the Democratic leadership that he'd be on hand all day long.

GIFTS—It's usual for House members to advertise the products of their Congressional districts by distributing them to other members. For instance, Maine politicians import lobster; Idahoans bring in potatoes; Wisconsinites import cheese, and each year from the South comes the annual "maid of cotton."

Not to be outdone, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, of New Orleans, delivered Father's Day ties manufactured in his home town to his fellow Representatives this year. Not knowing how to satisfy the variety of sartorial tastes of his colleagues, Hebert enclosed the following note with the cravats:

"I hope the tie melts into your individual personality and matches your eyes whether they are baby blue or deep black, soft brown or hangover red. If your esthetic taste is rudely violated, then come around and make your own pick, if some other guy hasn't been around before you."

The House has blossomed out in a most unusual array of neckwear.

Novelist To Playwright

By Peter S. Feibleman

(While John Crosby is on vacation, his column will be written by guests. Today's contributor is Peter S. Feibleman, author of "A Place Without Twilight.")

A novelist who decides to write a play should first learn how not to write a novel. This may save him anywhere from two to four years of writing agreeable but endless dialogue in which everything is Said and nothing Happens; it may save him 13 to 15 drafts of the play he has decided to write; it may also kill him. In any case it remains the wisest course of action, short of shock treatment or Siberia, if he has got to write that play. What he shouldn't be allowed to do heedlessly is just sit down and write it—unless he is Carson McCullers, which seems unlikely, or unless he is some other kind of genius, or just drunk, in which case it probably won't hurt him.

Shortly after the publication of our first novel this writer returned to America in the spring of 1958, having lived a number of years out of the country. We had been lucky. Our first book, "A Place Without Twilight," was a success. The critics liked it and so did the public. Two days after we got off the plane, we met our first Broadway producer. He sidled up to us furtively at a cocktail party. Then he smiled. "Boy," he said, "there's a play in that novel." This struck us at the time in the same way it might if a stranger approached a young painter who had just completed four years' work on his first successful canvas, and told him: "There's a piece of sculpture in that." If the painter is a painter, the chances are he isn't a sculptor, and he won't be flattered. We said something noncommittal, forgot about it, and went home.

The next morning we continued to work on our new novel as usual; a few months later it was published. We began work on another. About at the halfway mark, the third novel stopped of its own accord and refused to go any further. This is not too uncommon an event for most novelists, and by then we had learned not to keep pressing at it, but rather to set the novel aside for a few days and do something else until the work recharged itself. We wrote an article. We went swimming. We yawned. We put a piece of paper in the typewriter and wrote a few harmless little lines of dialogue. We wrote a few more lines. We called Carson McCullers on the telephone and asked her how she had gone about writing a play from a novel. "I just sat down and wrote it," Carson said. We asked how long it had taken. "Two summers," she said. We asked if it had been difficult. "I don't know," she said, "it's like anything else." We shrugged. "Oh, by the way," Carson said, "don't let them use all those funny theatrical words on you." We asked which words she meant, and who was going to use them. "You'll see, darling," she said, and hung up.

Three years, two producers, one typewriter, and 15 complete drafts of a play later, the work was finished. The funny theatrical words (e. g, "It's the most beautiful material I ever read, but it just won't go," etc.) had become as natural to us as Good Morning or Good Night. We had learned that the problems of playwrighting for a novelist are inclined to be more numerous than they are for a non-writer. A novelist in the theater is like a thoroughly and improperly trained athlete. Before he can learn to use new muscles, he must learn to stop using old ones. We learned other things; the novel supposed to have a play in it was a novel, and it was never meant to be anything else. Most of the characters flatly refused to be put on the stage. The adaptation we had begun three years ago was now a totally new work, a new plot with new characters. In its gestation and birth, the new work very nearly consumed itself and us, confused two Broadway producers who spotted it too early; and it all but killed a talented director named Lloyd Richards who acted as friend and obstetrician through too many periods of false labor. The play was finally born thanks to Oliver Smith, who induced true labor by being perceptive enough to choose exactly the right moment in which to hit us both over the head. Mr. Smith, in association with Roger Stevens, will produce the play, still miraculously called "A Place Without Twilight," on Broadway next season.

Meanwhile, our old friends don't know us. The other day when we finally finished work, we again spoke to Mrs. McCullers on the telephone. We told her the play was done and she congratulated us. Then we asked her about a certain actress whom she had worked with, and whom our producers were considering for the lead. "She's a good actress," Carson said, "she's very good with the other actors, and she's very good on the stage." We asked how the actress in question treated the material she was given to act. "What do you mean by material?" Carson said, "is that one of those funny theatrical words?" We said we were referring to the play. "You call a play material?" Carson said. "Where are you, Klein's?"

A few days ago, at a party, we happened to meet a producer we had not seen for a long time. He sidled up to us furtively and smiled. "You're Peter Feibleman," he said. We admitted this. "I read in the paper your play's going to be produced. What's it called?" he asked. We told him. He stared. "You see," he said, "I told you there was a play in that novel." We backed away from him quietly to the nearest exit.

TV Gets Blame For Increase In Coccygodynia

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Coccygodynia is a painful condition of the tail bone (coccyx) and its neighboring region. It is said to be on the increase because more people are watching TV for hours at a time. While prolonged sitting in an overstuffed chair is one culprit, there are others. Slouching while driving on long auto trips is one, and injury is another.

The coccyx is the counterpart of an animal's tail. The structure is a tiny bone less than half an inch long, sprouting from the base of the spine. It rarely is formed until adult life and has no function except to hold certain muscles in place.

It can be a great nuisance when injured because it is surrounded by many nerves and muscles. Falling, especially on the stairs or while skating or skiing, is likely to injure the area. Damage occurs also through a blow or a kick. As stated previously, sitting for long periods and faulty posture create a strain on the structure.

Pain from a trivial accident usually disappears in a short time; fractures heal more slowly. A true coccygodynia exists when distress persists after strain or injury to the lower spine, even though healing is complete.

No one knows why pain persists even after the tiny bone is removed. Months or years may elapse before tenderness vanishes. Discomfort may stem from residual arthritis and occasionally from inflammation of the neighboring nerves or pelvic organs.

Fractures require absolute rest in bed and local heat. Later, strips of adhesive tape are applied to the lower back. Ordinary coccygodnia is relieved also by heat via diathermy, intfra-red, or warm baths.

But the individual must sit properly to be comfortable. The coccyx ought to be brought directly backward in the erect sitting posture to relieve strain. A hard, firm seat is better than a comfortable looking upholstered chair. Massage also helps, especially when done internally.

The tail bone is removed only when pain does not respond to simple measures or if the bone is deformed, displaced, or fractured.

FAMILY RESEMBLANCE

Mrs. L. D. writes: I have two children. One is dark—the image of my husband—but the other looks like my brother, who is fair skinned and blue eyed. Now my husband claims the hospital made a mistake and gave us the wrong baby. I'm afraid all this will reflect on my innocent child's mind when he gets older. Do children all have to look like the father?

REPLY

No. Some look like the mother or her side of the family. In many instances, the mixture is so great the child does not look like either father or mother. Youngsters also change in appearance as they get older; those who look like the father at age 2 may resemble the mother at age 20.

DISPLACED TRACHEA

F. H. writes: My trachea is curved because of a swollen thyroid. Can this gland be shrunk with medicine or is surgery the only way?

REPLY

The gland must be removed, provided the curve in the trachea affects breathing or the enlarged gland is overactive (toxic).

COLON POLYPS

H. T. writes: What causes polyps in the colon?

REPLY

The cause is not known. Polyps in the nose are related to allergy but we do not know why these miniature punching bags develop elsewhere.

REACTION TO MILK

L. M. writes: Why—whenever I drink milk—do I get diarrhea?

REPLY

This may represent an allergic reaction.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

In the last piece that James Thurber wrote, the great humorist took a dim view of modern trends in his chosen field. "Comedy," he noted, "didn't die; it just went crazy. It has identified itself with the very tension and terror it once did so much to alleviate. The roost is ruled today by what has been called the comedy menace: horror jokes, magazines known as horror comics, and sick comedians . . . Life at the moment is a tale told in an idiom, full of unsoundeness and fury, signifying nonism."

Warmth instead of coldness. 4. Attention instead of neglect. 5. Patience instead of delay. 8. Appreciation instead of apathy.

Space Role Of The Military

A quiet, but significant, shift in America's space program has been accomplished in the last few months which has brought the Defense Department back from virtual obscurity and given it a significant—if not commanding—role in future space developments.

From the inception of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the civil agency has enjoyed a virtual monopoly of space planning and rocket probes. With the exception of a few obviously necessary military activities, such as a satellite detection and warning system, the Pentagon has been assigned little more than back-up chores for NASA operations.

Manned orbiting satellites designed to overtake and disarm a nuclear warhead-armed vehicle is one Air Force goal now receiving active support. Others undoubtedly will follow as the total space effort begins to soar in earnest. From $1.5 billion spent in space activity only last year, the budget is expected to grow to $3.7 billion in 1963 and nearly $7 billion by 1964.

Much of this increase will reflect growth in military space programs. These programs were postponed or restricted during the years of fruitless disarmament discussions with Moscow. Even now, when it appears the U. S. may be on the threshold of sharing the fruits of its space explorations with the rest of the world, a discernible turn toward the development of military satellites and space rocketry belies any great confidence in an East-West space partnership.

It would appear the President has become aware the military opportunities in space—available to friend and foe alike—have not been sufficiently developed or guarded against.

Xmas And Chanuka

The Supreme Court having voted 6-1 to eliminate God from the public schools may have taken the joy out of the lives of children by removing religious holidays which are so meaningful. In passing, it is worthwhile to inform Lawrence Roth, the author of the troubles that produced the outrageous Black Decision, that as a result of the July 17, 1862 Lincoln signature, Rabbi Jacob Frankel of Congregation Rodelph Shalom of Philadelphia, on September 18, 1862, became the first Jewish chaplain commissioned by the American government. The first Jewish chaplain to be wounded in action was Rabbi Ferdinand Sarner who fought at Gettysburg.

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

On Tuesday afternoon, President Kennedy met at the White House with Secretary of the Treasury Dillon, Secretary of Defense McNamara, and Deputy Secretary Roswell Gilpatric for a long bout of cheese paring.

The cheese to be pared was the one that most worries the U. S. business community and the banking fraternity all over the world—namely, the persistent deficit in the U. S. balance of payments, which has caused the U. S. heavy gold losses of recent years.

Much too little attention has been paid to the long, hard effort to shrink the payments deficit that began when President Kennedy took office. In particular, net defense spending overseas has already been heavily reduced, both by American economies and by arrangements for offsetting arms purchases in this country by the Germans and others.

To be specific, the rate of net dollar outflow for defense, which was $2.7 billion per annum in the last Eisenhower year, has already shrunk greatly and will drop to $1.6 billion per annum in 1963. At Tuesday's White House meeting, a target of $600 million of additional shrinkage was set, to be attained over a further period of two years. "It will be a painful target to reach," said one defense official, "but we believe we can reach it—and without penalizing individual servicemen or their families."

Reaching the target will require spending some more defense dollars here in the U. S., in order to cut still further into dollar outflow abroad. Even so, what is being achieved is remarkable, and all the more so at a time when the increases of U. S. defense effort, both in Viet Nam and in Europe, might have been expected to send the outflow of defense dollars soaring sky-high.

All this is particularly interesting, moreover, because it suggests that the business men and the economists may eventually have to re-examine several of their current rubber-stamp slogans, about the insurmountable "change in the U. S. world position," the hopelessness of the "fundamental payments deficit problem," and so on. The record suggests that re-thinking may be in order rather soon.

To be specific, the payments deficit in the last Eisenhower year was $3.9 billion. In that year, the net military dollar outflow was $2.7 billion, and the net outflow for the foreign aid program was $1.3 billion. In other words, even in this worst year, the U. S. economy traded on even terms with the rest of the world, and the payments deficit was almost exactly equal to the sum in dollars spent overseas for defense and foreign aid.

In President Kennedy's first year in office, the payments deficit dropped by over $1 billion, to just under $2.5 billion. But since cheese paring is a slow, long term business, the outflow of defense dollars remained at a level of $2.6 billion, and the outflow for economic aid was unchanged at $1.3 billion.

This year, the improvement is very much more dramatic. The first quarter's payment deficit was $465 million; and the deficit for the second quarter will be under $200 million. Byt the end of this year, moreover, the rate of outflow of defense dollars will have dropped more than $1 billion per annum below the rate in the last Eisenhower year; and the rate of dollar outflow for foreign aid will also be reduced, it is hoped, by about $300 million.

Some of the reduction in this year's payments deficit has been achieved by one shot operations, like advance repayment of earlier U. S. loans to allied governments. Nonetheless, the total payments deficit has plainly shrunk in an important manner, judging by the figures in the two first two quarters. This result has been partly attained by government-sponsored dollar economies, resulting from such moves as the changes in the tourists' import allowances. Simultaneously with the shrinkage in the over-all payments deficit, there is a massive shrinkage in the rate of dollar outflow to pay for government activities overseas. The payments deficit, therefore, is dwindling towards a balance.

This is just the result that Secretary of the Treasury Dillon has been stoutly predicting for 1963, despite the gloom that prevails in the business community. Maybe the gloom has not been altogether unconstructive. The President has certainly renewed his attack on the problem of the payments deficit with extra vigor, since he began to consult business leaders like Robert A. Lovett, John J. McCloy, and David Rockefeller.

Furthermore, the gloom of the business men will be unhappily justified if the general trade balance turns sour, and thus cancels the effect of the governmental cuts in dollar outflow. Yet the outlook is clearly far better than has been generally supposed.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CROSSED WIRE — Rep. H. R. Gross, Iowa Republican, has become the House's most vocal champion of economy in government. He's constantly demanding to know "where's the money coming from" to finance government projects.

The other day, the House faced an acrimonious debate on raising the debt limit, an action universally opposed by advocates of economy.

Knowing he was heading into a tough and close fight, House Democratic whip Hale Boggs sent telegrams to all Democrats urging them to be on hand throughout the day. As sometimes happens, one of the telegrams was misdirected to Gross.

When debate opened, Gross solemnly arose and read the telegram; then just as deadpan assured Boggs and the Democratic leadership that he'd be on hand all day long.

GIFTS—It's usual for House members to advertise the products of their Congressional districts by distributing them to other members. For instance, Maine politicians import lobster; Idahoans bring in potatoes; Wisconsinites import cheese, and each year from the South comes the annual "maid of cotton."

Not to be outdone, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, of New Orleans, delivered Father's Day ties manufactured in his home town to his fellow Representatives this year. Not knowing how to satisfy the variety of sartorial tastes of his colleagues, Hebert enclosed the following note with the cravats:

"I hope the tie melts into your individual personality and matches your eyes whether they are baby blue or deep black, soft brown or hangover red. If your esthetic taste is rudely violated, then come around and make your own pick, if some other guy hasn't been around before you."

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Here are things you may not know about sugar when you drink your morning coffee: Sugar subsidies cost you and other consumers about half a billion dollars a year. This doesn't include the cost of producing the sugar—just the subsidy . . . It's a concealed subsidy, as Rep. Harold Cooley, (D-N. C.), great friend of the sugar lobby, frankly admits: "If we do away with quotas and do away premiums, the only thing we would have would be payments to the domestic producers, and those payments would stand up like a sore thumb and be difficult for us to justify."

Sugar subsidy money doesn't go to small farmers, but to the big outfits. The U. S. Sugar Corp. got the biggest subsidy in 1960—$775,121. It was topped only by Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company which got $980,691 from the U. S. taxpayers . . . Other big subsidy beneficiaries were Oahu Sugar Company—$500,089; Pioneer Mills—$413,127; Waialua Agricultural Co.—$466,210—all Hawaiian; also Luce and Co.—$590,661; Brewer P. R. Inc.—$413,530; and Sucession J. Serralles—$370,903—All in Puerto Rico . . . On the U. S. mainland, the biggest subsidies went to Okeelanta Sugar Refinery in Louisiana—$351,403; the South Coast Corp.—$303,971; Southdown, Inc.—$186,270. There were a score of other subsidy payments over $50,000 each to other corporations—hardly any to individual farmers.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Two-thirds of the sugar purchased by American firms is by Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, Wrigley's Spearmint, National Biscuit, Hershey Chocolate, plus other industrial users. Their profits range from 7 per cent to 30 per cent . . . Despite the U. S. government subsidy—supposed to guarantee price stabilization—the price you pay for sugar fluctuates like the thermometer on the banks of the Potomac. In 1961, the world market price was the lowest in years, but U. S. retail sugar prices rose to their highest level sincce 1934 when the sugar subsidy act was passed. Average price per pound in 1961 was 11.8 cents, an increase of 17 per cent from 10 years ago.

Because the U. S. sugar market pays a premium of about $56 a ton over outside prices, this market is the most highly prized in the world, and Congress for the past two weeks has been engaged in carving it up. It did a botch-work job, partly because Rep. Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, postponed the sugar bill until the last minute. Some Congressmen suspected Cooley was purposedly delaying so that the Senate would not have a chance to rectify House mistakes—Sen. Harry Byrd, (D-Va.), called the sugar bill the worst in history . . . However, Cooley was busy in North Carolina for several weeks trying a law case that would have earned him a law fee of about 200,000. This has nothing to do with the salary he is supposed to earn as a Congressman in Washington. President Kennedy at one point got so worried that he telephoned Cooley in North Carolina asking him to come back to Washington. Cooley did return—after he lost his lawsuit—but left almost immediately for Rome, Italy, to attend an Inter-Parliamentary Union meeting—at the taxpayers' expense.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Because Cooley comes from North Carolina, several foreign countries hired North Carolinians as lobbyists to get them better sugar quotas. There's nothing illegal about lobbying. It's a right guaranteed in the Constitution, and many highly respected attorneys appear before Congress as lobbyists. Among them, in this case, was Ralph Gardner, whose father was the much-loved late governor of North Carolina. Ralph represented the small island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. Fee—$11,121 . . . Wesley E. McDonald, another North Carolinian, represented Panam. Fee—$1,500 . . . Another highly respected lobbyist, former Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, represented Mexico. Fee—$25,000. He helped to write the 1934 sugar act and knows more about sugar than almost anyone in Washington . . . Rocco C. Siciliano, former able assistant to President Eisenhower, represented Salvador. Fee—$15,000. . . . John Duncan, Vice President of the W. R. Grace Line Company, which owns sugar properties in Peru, represented that country but received no fee . . . James Riddell, associated with Donald Dawson, former aide to President Truman, represented India. Fee—Contingent on success . . . The only country without a lobbyist in Washington was Argentina, which, significantly, ended up with no sugar quota. Apparently it pays to hire lobbyists.

Anyone Else?

During the sugar bill hearings, Sen. Paul Douglas, (D-Ill.), facetiously asked: "Is there anyone here from the New Hebrides, the Canary Islands, Azores, Tananarive, Tristan da Cunha, Christmas Island, Norfolk Island, Easter Island who might like to testify?"

Added Sen. Gene McCarthy, (D-Minn.), "Speak now or forever hold your peace."

Novelist To Playwright

By Peter S. Feibleman

(While John Crosby is on vacation, his column will be written by guests. Today's contributor is Peter S. Feibleman, author of "A Place Without Twilight.")

A novelist who decides to write a play should first learn how not to write a novel. This may save him anywhere from two to four years of writing agreeable but endless dialogue in which everything is Said and nothing Happens; it may save him 13 to 15 drafts of the play he has decided to write; it may also kill him. In any case it remains the wisest course of action, short of shock treatment or Siberia, if he has got to write that play. What he shouldn't be allowed to do heedlessly is just sit down and write it—unless he is Carson McCullers, which seems unlikely, or unless he is some other kind of genius, or just drunk, in which case it probably won't hurt him.

Shortly after the publication of our first novel this writer returned to America in the spring of 1958, having lived a number of years out of the country. We had been lucky. Our first book, "A Place Without Twilight," was a success. The critics liked it and so did the public. Two days after we got off the plane, we met our first Broadway producer. He sidled up to us furtively at a cocktail party. Then he smiled. "Boy," he said, "there's a play in that novel." This struck us at the time in the same way it might if a stranger approached a young painter who had just completed four years' work on his first successful canvas, and told him: "There's a piece of sculpture in that." If the painter is a painter, the chances are he isn't a sculptor, and he won't be flattered. We said something noncommittal, forgot about it, and went home.

The next morning we continued to work on our new novel as usual; a few months later it was published. We began work on another. About at the halfway mark, the third novel stopped of its own accord and refused to go any further. This is not too uncommon an event for most novelists, and by then we had learned not to keep pressing at it, but rather to set the novel aside for a few days and do something else until the work recharged itself. We wrote an article. We went swimming. We yawned. We put a piece of paper in the typewriter and wrote a few harmless little lines of dialogue. We wrote a few more lines. We called Carson McCullers on the telephone and asked her how she had gone about writing a play from a novel. "I just sat down and wrote it," Carson said. We asked how long it had taken. "Two summers," she said. We asked if it had been difficult. "I don't know," she said, "it's like anything else." We shrugged. "Oh, by the way," Carson said, "don't let them use all those funny theatrical words on you." We asked which words she meant, and who was going to use them. "You'll see, darling," she said, and hung up.

Three years, two producers, one typewriter, and 15 complete drafts of a play later, the work was finished. The funny theatrical words (e. g, "It's the most beautiful material I ever read, but it just won't go," etc.) had become as natural to us as Good Morning or Good Night. We had learned that the problems of playwrighting for a novelist are inclined to be more numerous than they are for a non-writer. A novelist in the theater is like a thoroughly and improperly trained athlete. Before he can learn to use new muscles, he must learn to stop using old ones. We learned other things; the novel supposed to have a play in it was a novel, and it was never meant to be anything else. Most of the characters flatly refused to be put on the stage. The adaptation we had begun three years ago was now a totally new work, a new plot with new characters. In its gestation and birth, the new work very nearly consumed itself and us, confused two Broadway producers who spotted it too early; and it all but killed a talented director named Lloyd Richards who acted as friend and obstetrician through too many periods of false labor. The play was finally born thanks to Oliver Smith, who induced true labor by being perceptive enough to choose exactly the right moment in which to hit us both over the head. Mr. Smith, in association with Roger Stevens, will produce the play, still miraculously called "A Place Without Twilight," on Broadway next season.

Meanwhile, our old friends don't know us. The other day when we finally finished work, we again spoke to Mrs. McCullers on the telephone. We told her the play was done and she congratulated us. Then we asked her about a certain actress whom she had worked with, and whom our producers were considering for the lead. "She's a good actress," Carson said, "she's very good with the other actors, and she's very good on the stage." We asked how the actress in question treated the material she was given to act. "What do you mean by material?" Carson said, "is that one of those funny theatrical words?" We said we were referring to the play. "You call a play material?" Carson said. "Where are you, Klein's?"

A few days ago, at a party, we happened to meet a producer we had not seen for a long time. He sidled up to us furtively and smiled. "You're Peter Feibleman," he said. We admitted this. "I read in the paper your play's going to be produced. What's it called?" he asked. We told him. He stared. "You see," he said, "I told you there was a play in that novel." We backed away from him quietly to the nearest exit.

TV Gets Blame For Increase In Coccygodynia

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Coccygodynia is a painful condition of the tail bone (coccyx) and its neighboring region. It is said to be on the increase because more people are watching TV for hours at a time. While prolonged sitting in an overstuffed chair is one culprit, there are others. Slouching while driving on long auto trips is one, and injury is another.

The coccyx is the counterpart of an animal's tail. The structure is a tiny bone less than half an inch long, sprouting from the base of the spine. It rarely is formed until adult life and has no function except to hold certain muscles in place.

It can be a great nuisance when injured because it is surrounded by many nerves and muscles. Falling, especially on the stairs or while skating or skiing, is likely to injure the area. Damage occurs also through a blow or a kick. As stated previously, sitting for long periods and faulty posture create a strain on the structure.

Pain from a trivial accident usually disappears in a short time; fractures heal more slowly. A true coccygodynia exists when distress persists after strain or injury to the lower spine, even though healing is complete.

No one knows why pain persists even after the tiny bone is removed. Months or years may elapse before tenderness vanishes. Discomfort may stem from residual arthritis and occasionally from inflammation of the neighboring nerves or pelvic organs.

Fractures require absolute rest in bed and local heat. Later, strips of adhesive tape are applied to the lower back. Ordinary coccygodnia is relieved also by heat via diathermy, intfra-red, or warm baths.

But the individual must sit properly to be comfortable. The coccyx ought to be brought directly backward in the erect sitting posture to relieve strain. A hard, firm seat is better than a comfortable looking upholstered chair. Massage also helps, especially when done internally.

The tail bone is removed only when pain does not respond to simple measures or if the bone is deformed, displaced, or fractured.

FAMILY RESEMBLANCE

Mrs. L. D. writes: I have two children. One is dark—the image of my husband—but the other looks like my brother, who is fair skinned and blue eyed. Now my husband claims the hospital made a mistake and gave us the wrong baby. I'm afraid all this will reflect on my innocent child's mind when he gets older. Do children all have to look like the father?

REPLY

No. Some look like the mother or her side of the family. In many instances, the mixture is so great the child does not look like either father or mother. Youngsters also change in appearance as they get older; those who look like the father at age 2 may resemble the mother at age 20.

DISPLACED TRACHEA

F. H. writes: My trachea is curved because of a swollen thyroid. Can this gland be shrunk with medicine or is surgery the only way?

REPLY

The gland must be removed, provided the curve in the trachea affects breathing or the enlarged gland is overactive (toxic).

COLON POLYPS

H. T. writes: What causes polyps in the colon?

REPLY

The cause is not known. Polyps in the nose are related to allergy but we do not know why these miniature punching bags develop elsewhere.

REACTION TO MILK

L. M. writes: Why—whenever I drink milk—do I get diarrhea?

REPLY

This may represent an allergic reaction.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

In the last piece that James Thurber wrote, the great humorist took a dim view of modern trends in his chosen field. "Comedy," he noted, "didn't die; it just went crazy. It has identified itself with the very tension and terror it once did so much to alleviate. The roost is ruled today by what has been called the comedy menace: horror jokes, magazines known as horror comics, and sick comedians . . . Life at the moment is a tale told in an idiom, full of unsoundeness and fury, signifying nonism."

Wilfred Peterson compresses into a few words a whole course in the gentle art of salesmanship: 1. Courteous words instead of sharp retorts. 2. Smiles instead of blank looks. 3. Warmth instead of coldness. 4. Attention instead of neglect. 5. Patience instead of delay. 8. Appreciation instead of apathy.

Two elderly ladies wandered into Yankee Stadium just as Roger Maris unloaded a prodigious home run into the right-field stands. They sat watching the proceedings that followed in apathetic silence until a few innings later, Maris came up again and hit another homer to virtually the same spot as the first one.

One of the ladies nodded at this point and said, "We can go now, Hilda. This is where we came in."

Mt. Pleasant Battle To Be Staged Today

Over 400 Men Will Re-enact Raid

The Cumberland Continentals, local reactivated Civil War company, and the Frostburg Lions Club will sponsor the Civil War battle re-enactment Saturday at 2 p.m. at Wright's Crossing.

The event called the "Battle of Mt. Pleasant" will be staged on Layman's Farm one mile south of Frostburg on Route 36 as a part of the Frostburg Sesquicentennial and in cooperation with the Allegany County Civil War Centennial Commission.

Over 400 men from five states including 12 cavalrymen, 12 cannon crews, will take part, plus surgeons from Baltimore City Hospitals who will set up a replica of a Confederate field medical unit.

Among the units participating will be Battery C of the Second Maryland Light Artillery, sponsored by the Queen City Brewing Company, which will be part of a four-gun union battery that will include the West Virginia Artillery of Morgantown and Ringgold Cavalry with two cannons from Washington, Pa.

They will be opposed by a Confederate artillery group consisting of the First Stuart Horse Artillery of Seabrook, Md.; MacGregor's Horse Artillery Battery of Oxon Hill, Md.; the Chesapeake Artillery from Baltimore and the Sixth Maryland Artillery from Frederick.

The battle will feature a typical raid much like the ones made by the Confederates on the railroads and the Union troops assigned here to protect the railroads.

The public and camera fans are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to take photos of troops and their ladies dressed in authentic Civil War period uniforms and dresses.

There will be adequate parking and viewing areas.

Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. a dance will be held at the Maplehurst Country Club for members of units that participate in the re-enactment. Music will be by Jimmy Andrews and his Orchestra.

He was breezing along on a four-hitter until the ninth inning.

Tony Gonzalez opened the third inning with a shot into the right field stands for his 11th homer of the season and the 15th yielded by Friend.

Marlene Hagge Leads In Kelly Girl Tourney

Shoots First Round 72 At Turf Valley

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Marlene Hagge of DelRay Beach Fla., without a tournament victory on the ladies' pro tour since 1960, took command of the Turf Valley Open Friday with a two-over men's par 72 in the first round.

Sandra Haynie, of Fort Worth, Tex., was next with 74 followed by Shirley Engelhorn of Caldwell, Idaho, with 75.

Of the 56 women competitors, including 26 amateurs, who played in the first round of the 54-hole $7,500 tournament, 21 broke 80 over a course measuring 6,400 yards from the front of the men's tees.

Mickey Wright, winner of three tournaments this season, was among three tied at 76.

But for some lapses with her putter, Mrs. Hagge might have broken 70. She took three putts on three greens, the last time from 100 feet on the 18th. She also took three at 3 and 4, making the nine-hole turn in 37.

She was under men's par on the back nine with birdies on the 11 and 15 after going for a bogey at 10. Her three putts on the 18th put her even.

Art Mahaffey Records 10th Victory, 6-2

Bucs' Streak Ends At Eight; Friend Yields 11 Blows

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Fast-balling Art Mahaffey slowed down Pittsburgh Friday night by scattering seven hits for a 6-2 victory that ended Philadelphia's losing streak at eight games and snapped the Pirates' seven-game winning string.

The strong right-hander was only two outs from a shutout when the Pirates began one of their typical late game rallies.

Bob Skinner singled and Roberto Clemente doubled. Jim Marshall drove both runners home with a two-bagger after Smoky Burgess popped out. Mahaffey retired the next two batters to record his 10th victory. In going the route for the 10th time this season, Mahaffey struck out five and yielded only one walk. He was breezing along on a four-hitter until the ninth inning.

The Phillies whacked out 15 hits in beating the Pirates for the first time in five meetings this season. Loser Bob Friend was clobbered for 11 hits and four runs. Tony Gonzalez opened the third inning with a shot into the right field stands for his 11th homer of the season and the 15th yielded by Friend.

Grantsville, Frostburg Tossers Clash Sunday

Pen-Mar's Leader And Runner-Up Play At Beall Field

Frostburg's Merchants and one-two in the Pen-Mar Baseball League race, are slated to tangle in the feature game Sunday at 2:30 p. m., at Beall High Field, Frostburg.

Manager William "Bee" Scarpelli's Merchants are setting the pace with a 12-3 record and Grantsville occupies the runner-up spot with a 10-6 record, 2½ games off the pace.

The Merchants won the series opener at Grantsville May 5 by the score of 12-7 with Ralph Peace gaining the verdict over Jones. The Garrett countians, however, evened up accounts by copping the second game on June 9 at Frostburg to the tune of 13-5. Bob Keister decisioned Peace in that contest.

In other contests, Curl's Camera Shop stayed on the heels of the unbeaten league leaders, copping their fourth win with a 14-0 walloping of Forty & Eight at Allegany field, while Toy Shop evened its mark at 3-3 with a 7-6 decision over Veterans of Foreign Wars at Stitcher Field.

Homer Hardinger hurled the shutout win for Curl's giving up only four singles.

Tommy Hamilton collected four straight hits and batted in four runs for Curl's while Terry Lease belted a home run in the first inning and Harold Hardinger had a homer and two singles.

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians beat Chicago 5-3, Friday night to stretch their winning streak to five games, longest of the season.

The victory was the first for Reuben Gomez. Starter Early Wynn, who took the loss, went 4 1-3 innings in trying for the 297th victory of his career.

The Indians, shut out by Wynn the first two times he faced them this season, scored two runs in the first inning. Ty Cline beat out a bunt and went to second on Nelson Fox's wild throw to first. Don Dillard's triple to right field sent Cline home and Dillard scored on an infield out.

They added two more in the fifth when Tito Francona was hit by a pitch and went to third on Willie Kirkland's single. John Romano's sacrifice fly scored Francona and Kirkland scored later on a force out.

Marlene Hagge Leads In Kelly Girl Tourney

Shoots First Round 72 At Turf Valley

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Marlene Hagge of DelRay Beach Fla., without a tournament victory on the ladies' pro tour since 1960, took command of the Turf Valley Open Friday with a two-over men's par 72 in the first round.

Sandra Haynie, of Fort Worth, Tex., was next with 74 followed by Shirley Engelhorn of Caldwell, Idaho, with 75.

Of the 56 women competitors, including 26 amateurs, who played in the first round of the 54-hole $7,500 tournament, 21 broke 80 over a course measuring 6,400 yards from the front of the men's tees.

Mickey Wright, winner of three tournaments this season, was among three tied at 76.

But for some lapses with her putter, Mrs. Hagge might have broken 70. She took three putts on three greens, the last time from 100 feet on the 18th. She also took three at 3 and 4, making the nine-hole turn in 37.

She was under men's par on the back nine with birdies on the 11 and 15 after going for a bogey at 10. Her three putts on the 18th put her even.

Washington-Lee High Crew Makes Semi-Finals In Henley Regatta

Penn And Detroit Oarsmen Lose In Races In England

By MIKE HUGHES
United Press International

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, England (UPI)—Washington-Lee High School's dead-game kids advanced to the semifinals of the Thames Cup competition in the Henley Royal Regatta Friday but the two other U.S. boats still in the regatta were beaten.

The University of Pennsylvania, sole remaining American threat in the Grand Challenge Cup competition which features the regatta, went down to a 1 1-3 length defeat at the hands of the title favorite Moto-Guzzi crew of Italy in a semifinal race.

And the Detroit Boat Club lost to the National Provincial Bank crew in the quarter-finals of the Thames Cup.

Washington-Lee had to fight all the way for the second straight day to beat the London Dockers' crew, the Argosies, by three-quarters of a length in a clocking of 6:55.0 for the one-mile, 570-yard straight course on the Thames River.

"We were pushed all out," exclaimed Charlie Butt, coach of the U.S. high school kids from Arlington, Va. "I was hoping to see daylight between the two boats, but if it came I never saw it."

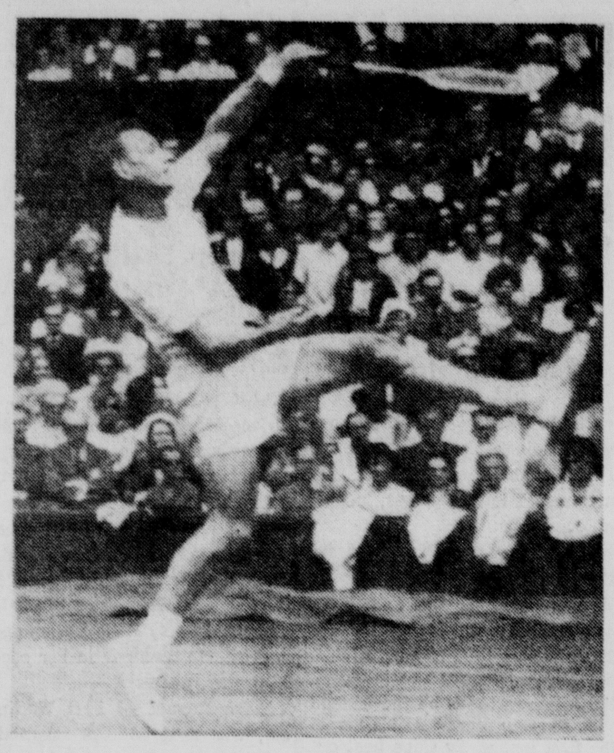

Washington-Lee led from start to finish, despite a high - stroke rate by the Argosies. After the first minute the U.S. team was a yard ahead and they built that to three-quarters of a length near the half-mile mark. The Argosies went partly out of their lane, then "caught a crab" in getting clear, but still managed to rally and cut the margin to about a half-length.

Moto - Guzzi, the European champion crew, was timed in 6:51 in defeating Penn. This was eight seconds slower than the time posted by the defending champion Soviet navy crew, which beat the Molesey crew of Britain in 6:45 in the other Grand Challenge semifinal. Moto-Guzzi and the Soviets will clash Saturday for the title.

The National Provincial Bank crew was timed in 6:49 in beating the Detroit Boat Club by 3¼ lengths. The Bankers were in front all the way and were not fully extended as they rowed 12 seconds slower than the Thames Cup record they set Thursday.

Washington-Lee will clash with the National Provincial Bank in the semifinals.

Defeats Mulligan In Straight Sets, Seeks Grand Slam

By ROBERT JONES

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Rod Laver took another step toward tennis' rare grand slam Friday when he buried fellow Australian Martin Mulligan 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 in the All-England men's final.

The bandy-legged little left-hander from sub-tropical Queensland needed only 52 minutes to add Wimbledon to the 1962 Australian and French championships he already had won.

Now only the U.S. championship at Forest Hills, beginning Aug. 27, stands between him and the sweep of the four big tournaments. Only one man—America's Don Budget in 1938—has been able to win all four in a single season.

Women's Finals Today

Mrs. Susman, whose husband Rodney attends Trinity University at San Antonio, Tex., will be bidding for a Wimbledon double.

She and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., gained the women's doubles final with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Justina Bricka of St. Louis, Mo., and Margaret Smith of Australia. They go against Mrs. Sandra Reynolds Price and Renee Schuurman of South Africa, who upset top-seeded Darlene Hard of Long Beach, Calif., and Maria Bueno of Brazil 6-3, 6-3.

Laver's victory was the sixth for Australia in the last seven years and it marked the sixth time in the last eight years that two Australians had been paired in the men's final.

Loses At Forest Hills

In 1956 Lew Hoard won the Australian, French and Wimbledon crowns and came to Forest Hills heavily favored to complete the grand slam. However, he was beaten by teammate Ken Rosewall.

"It would be great if I could do it," the quiet 23-year-old Laver said, in speaking of the sweep. "Still, a lot can happen at Forest Hills."

The way he played Friday, it appeared that there's not an amateur in the world who can come close to beating him. Many observers were ready to proclaim him the world's best—amateur or pro.

Braves Defeat Cubs On Homer

Mathews' Blast Wins In 10th, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Milwaukee home runs powered the Braves to a 5-3 10-inning victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday in a game marked by a batting out of turn incident in the second inning.

Earlier Hank Aaron, who left the game in the ninth with an ankle injury, hit his 20th homer. Joe Adcock then unloaded his 12th homer, a two-run blast, in the seventh behind Lee Maye's lead-off single.

Actually the only loser of the batting out of turn furor was outfielder Mack Jones, who lost credit for a single. Catcher Del Crandall, the eighth-place hitter on the official batting order card, walked with two out in the second.

Jones then singled to right, sending Crandall to third. Head coach Charlie Metro of the Cubs protested before pitcher Bob Hendley came to the plate and umpire Stan Landes ruled Hendley out for batting out of turn—failing to follow Crandall in the official order.

Since Jones officially never was at bat due to the mix-up, his single was erased and the side retired when Hendley was called out.

Jerry O'Baker pitched Barrelville to its eighth win, beating Stringtown, 8-6, on an eight-hit effort. Paul Stair was the loser as Stringtown bowed for the 10th time in 21 games.

Buffalo, Oakland Gridders Traded

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills of the American Football League got Wayne Crow, leading 1961 ground gainer from the Oakland Raiders, in trade Friday for defense tackle Chuck McMurtry and quarterback M. C. Reynolds.

Crow, former California back, is earmarked for running back with the Bills but is big and powerful enough to play fullback if necessary.

McMurtry has been a bulwark of the Bills' defensive line for the past two seasons. Reynolds was the club's leading quarterback last year.

Penn And Detroit Oarsmen Lose In Races In England

By MIKE HUGHES
United Press International

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, England (UPI)—Washington-Lee High School's dead-game kids advanced to the semifinals of the Thames Cup competition in the Henley Royal Regatta Friday but the two other U.S. boats still in the regatta were beaten.

The University of Pennsylvania, sole remaining American threat in the Grand Challenge Cup competition which features the regatta, went down to a 1 1-3 length defeat at the hands of the title favorite Moto-Guzzi crew of Italy in a semifinal race.

And the Detroit Boat Club lost to the National Provincial Bank crew in the quarter-finals of the Thames Cup.

Washington-Lee had to fight all the way for the second straight day to beat the London Dockers' crew, the Argosies, by three-quarters of a length in a clocking of 6:55.0 for the one-mile, 570-yard straight course on the Thames River.

"We were pushed all out," exclaimed Charlie Butt, coach of the U.S. high school kids from Arlington, Va. "I was hoping to see daylight between the two boats, but if it came I never saw it."

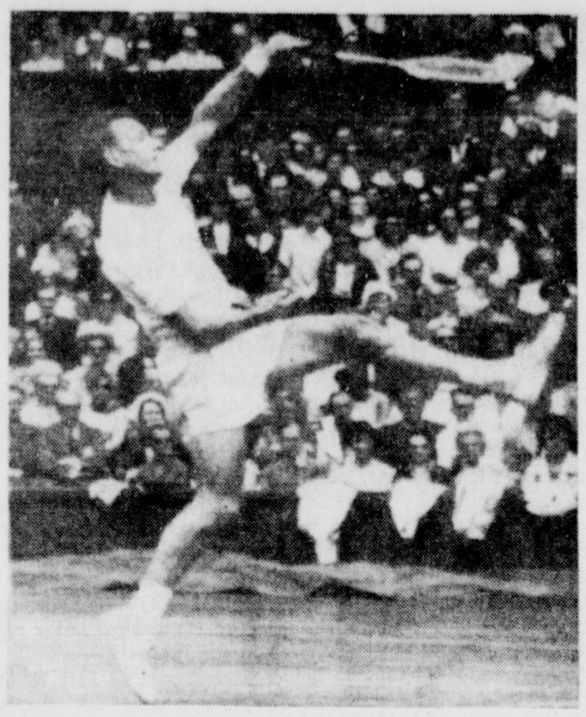

Washington-Lee led from start to finish, despite a high - stroke rate by the Argosies. After the first minute the U.S. team was a yard ahead and they built that to three-quarters of a length near the half-mile mark. The Argosies went partly out of their lane, then "caught a crab" in getting clear, but still managed to rally and cut the margin to about a half-length.

But in the drive to the finish, Washington - Lee raised its beat and pulled slowly further ahead to finish three-quarters of a length in front.

Moto - Guzzi, the European champion crew, was timed in 6:51 in defeating Penn. This was eight seconds slower than the time posted by the defending champion Soviet navy crew, which beat the Molesey crew of Britain in 6:45 in the other Grand Challenge semifinal. Moto-Guzzi and the Soviets will clash Saturday for the title.

The National Provincial Bank crew was timed in 6:49 in beating the Detroit Boat Club by 3¼ lengths. The Bankers were in front all the way and were not fully extended as they rowed 12 seconds slower than the Thames Cup record they set Thursday.

Washington-Lee will clash with the National Provincial Bank in the semifinals.

Rod Laver Cops Men's Singles At Wimbledon

Defeats Mulligan In Straight Sets, Seeks Grand Slam

By ROBERT JONES

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Rod Laver took another step toward tennis' rare grand slam Friday when he buried fellow Australian Martin Mulligan 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 in the All-England men's final.

The bandy-legged little left-hander from sub-tropical Queensland needed only 52 minutes to add Wimbledon to the 1962 Australian and French championships he already had won.

Now only the U.S. championship at Forest Hills, beginning Aug. 27, stands between him and the sweep of the four big tournaments. Only one man—America's Don Budget in 1938—has been able to win all four in a single season.

Women's Finals Today

Mrs. Susman, whose husband Rodney attends Trinity University at San Antonio, Tex., will be bidding for a Wimbledon double.

She and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., gained the women's doubles final with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Justina Bricka of St. Louis, Mo., and Margaret Smith of Australia. They go against Mrs. Sandra Reynolds Price and Renee Schuurman of South Africa, who upset top-seeded Darlene Hard of Long Beach, Calif., and Maria Bueno of Brazil 6-3, 6-3.

Laver's victory was the sixth for Australia in the last seven years and it marked the sixth time in the last eight years that two Australians had been paired in the men's final.

Loses At Forest Hills

In 1956 Lew Hoard won the Australian, French and Wimbledon crowns and came to Forest Hills heavily favored to complete the grand slam. However, he was beaten by teammate Ken Rosewall.

"It would be great if I could do it," the quiet 23-year-old Laver said, in speaking of the sweep. "Still, a lot can happen at Forest Hills."

The way he played Friday, it appeared that there's not an amateur in the world who can come close to beating him. Many observers were ready to proclaim him the world's best—amateur or pro.

Braves Defeat Cubs On Homer

Mathews' Blast Wins In 10th, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Milwaukee home runs powered the Braves to a 5-3 10-inning victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday in a game marked by a batting out of turn incident in the second inning.

Earlier Hank Aaron, who left the game in the ninth with an ankle injury, hit his 20th homer. Joe Adcock then unloaded his 12th homer, a two-run blast, in the seventh behind Lee Maye's lead-off single.

Actually the only loser of the batting out of turn furor was outfielder Mack Jones, who lost credit for a single. Catcher Del Crandall, the eighth-place hitter on the official batting order card, walked with two out in the second.

Jones then singled to right, sending Crandall to third. Head coach Charlie Metro of the Cubs protested before pitcher Bob Hendley came to the plate and umpire Stan Landes ruled Hendley out for batting out of turn—failing to follow Crandall in the official order.

Since Jones officially never was at bat due to the mix-up, his single was erased and the side retired when Hendley was called out.

Hyndman hiked its County Softball League lead as Junior Brelsford notched his eighth shutout and 18th pitching victory of the year yesterday, blanking Corriganville, 9-0, with only one hit.

Ronnie Emerick's fourth inning single was the only safe blow allowed by Brelsford who struck out six and walked but one. Ken Perdew gave up but three hits to the league-leaders but was the victim of his own wildness, walking 14 Hyndman batters.

Jerry O'Baker pitched Barrelville to its eighth win, beating Stringtown, 8-6, on an eight-hit effort. Paul Stair was the loser as Stringtown bowed for the 10th time in 21 games.

Keith Kennell belted a double and two singles, Floyd Bridges had a single and a two-bagger and Sonny Glass connected for a triple and single in Barrelville's nine-hit attack. Jerry Stair hit a triple and single and Tom Hare cracked a home run for the losers.

Condon Victor, 5-1; Black Label Wins

Ernie Condon mowed down an even dozen via the strikeout route and gave up only two singles as the Old Germans reeled off their ninth victory in ten outings at the expense of Snyder's Grocery in a Rec Softball League game yesterday at Post Field. The score was 5-1.

Eddie Barley and Jim Leamon collected the only hits yielded by Condon who recorded his second win of the season. Bill Kenney, who absorbed his fifth defeat against eight victories, was nicked for nine blows, four of which were shared by Jerry Willison and "Chuck" Eirich. Ron Carcella and Eirich delivered triples.

At Naval Reserve Field, Carling's Black Label downed Potomac Edison, 9-4, in a game featured by the relief hurling of Joe Biggs, who supplanted Lee Cover in the fourth and hurled hitless ball for four frames.

Wayne Holly and Walt Younger sparked the Black Label attack with three hits each. Holly blasted a triple and two singles and Young walloped a homer with one aboard and two singles. Ray Durst belted a three-run homer for P. E. in the fourth inning.

Stocks Decline Sharply As Activity Tapers Off

Trading, active early in the day when the market suffered the bulk of its loss, slowed to the week's lighest pace in the afternoon as prices came slightly off their lows in many cases. Volume was 3,110,000 shares aginat 3,350,000 in the previous session.

Brokers were little surprised by the decline. Some had been expecting it for several days and it was termed a normal reaction after more than a week of rising prices.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.64 to 56.17. In the Dow-Jones averages, industrials shed 7.70 but rails were off only 0.59 and utilities a meager 0.12. The loss in the 65 stock composite average was less than 1 per cent.

The market broadened out with 1,260 issues traded against 1,240 on Thursday. Declines outnumbered advances 741 to 284 and only three issues reached 1962 highs while 11 touched new lows.

Stocks Decline Sharply As Activity Tapers Off

Trading, active early in the day when the market suffered the bulk of its loss, slowed to the week's lighest pace in the afternoon as prices came slightly off their lows in many cases. Volume was 3,110,000 shares aginat 3,350,000 in the previous session.

Brokers were little surprised by the decline. Some had been expecting it for several days and it was termed a normal reaction after more than a week of rising prices.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.64 to 56.17. In the Dow-Jones averages, industrials shed 7.70 but rails were off only 0.59 and utilities a meager 0.12. The loss in the 65 stock composite average was less than 1 per cent.

The market broadened out with 1,260 issues traded against 1,240 on Thursday. Declines outnumbered advances 741 to 284 and only three issues reached 1962 highs while 11 touched new lows.

City's Parking Meter System Under Study

Changes Coming, Keegan Reports

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said yesterday that a study of the city's parking meter system is under way and that some changes will be made.

Mr. Keegan said no changes will be made until the study is completed but that there will definitely be some revision in the time, hours and price of metered parking.

He said it has definitely been decided that meters will be provided in some places where motorists can have all-day parking for 25 cents.

At present, the Police Department has 482 parking meters in operation and has 42 spares on hand for use while meters are being repaired.

To Mark Routes

They include 194 gold meters which offer two-hour parking and will take a nickel or a dime, 172 blue five-hour meters which will take a nickel, dime or quarter, 93 red 30-minute meters which will take nickels only, and 13 three-hour silver meters which will operate on either nickels or dimes.

He said one difficulty with the present meters is that they cannot be changed here and do not offer the necessary flexibility.

The changes made, he said, will be designed to help operate the meters, as all other functions of the Police Department, with efficiency and economy.

Plans are also being made, he added, to improve the flow of traffic on North Mechanic Street at Baltimore Street.

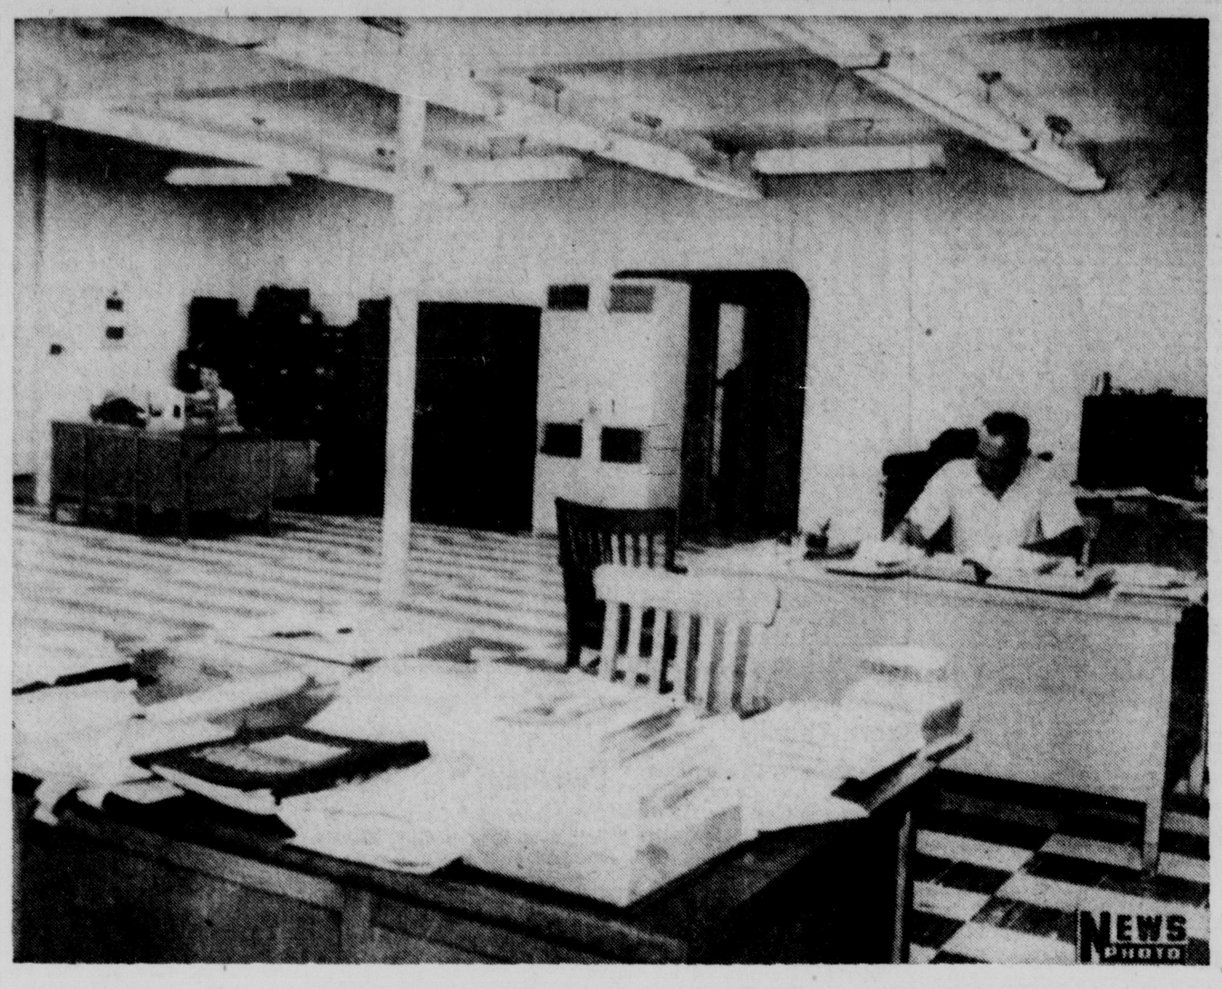

Wires will be strung at the intersection, he said, to mark the direction traffic may flow in each of the three lanes, along with signs designating the lane to use to get on Route 40, Route 220 and Route 28.

Will Work Traffic

Mr. Keegan is also looking into the possibility of improving the flow of traffic at Baltimore and North Centre streets.

The plan, which is already in use in Frostburg, calls for revamping the light system to provide a 10-second interval for left turns at the beginning of the go cycle.

To speed the flow of traffic on Tuesdays and Fridays, plans are being made for officers to work traffic on Mechanic Street at Bedford Street.

New Forestry Office

The new quarters of the district forester's office opened this week at the former site of LaVale Drug Store. In photo are Mrs. Berdetta Gurley, accounts clerk, and Harry Hartman, assistant district forester. The office, headed by District Forester W.A.C. (Clint) Irwin, not shown, had been located for several years in a smaller room on the third floor of the Court House.

Judge Confirms Cadillac Sale To Frederick

Receiver's Bond Is Increased

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey yesterday signed a court order ratifying and approving the sale of The Cadillac Lounge, 25 North Mechanic Street, to Henry F. Frederick, city, who on Thursday submitted an offer of $10,500 for the business, the higher of two offers.

The court action was taken after an attorney for the receiver of The Cadillac Lounge Inc., Mrs. Jane Molinari, reported to Judge Cobey the sale of the business to Frederick.

The other offer was submitted by Raymond Parker Sr., for $10,000.

The judge stipulated in the court order that the sale was ratified and approved upon the transfer of the liquor license to the purchaser.

The bond of the receiver was ordered increased from $5,000 to at least $10,500, said Judge Cobey.

Meanwhile, Mr. Frederick visited the office of the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage Licenses Commissioners yesterday morning and picked up an application for the Class D beer, wine and liquor license held by The Cadillac Lounge Inc. which was placed in receivership when an equity suit was filed in May.

He has until Wednesday, July 12, to file his application for the license with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of court, for action by the liquor board.

The two offers were opened Thursday afternoon by Judge Cobey in his chambers. The busines was sold on June 23 at a public sale to Mark Lazarus Sr. for $7,000 but was put up for resale when Judge Cobey deemed the amount inadequate.

Thursday morning, Clarence Lippel, attorney for Lazarus, filed an appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals from the decision Judge Cobey handed down Tuesday in connection with the sale of the cocktail lounge.

MRS. DORIS KOLB

ROBERT P. JACKSON

Two Teachers Appointed In County High Schools

Two experienced teachers have been appointed to high school teaching positions in Allegany County public schools, said Richard T. Rizer, assistant superintendent.

Mrs. Doris Kolb, of LaVale, who taught for a number of years in high schools throughout Maryland, is resuming her teaching career and has been assigned to Allegany High School where she will teach home economics.

She will replace Mrs. Jane Shipway, who has been transferred to Flintstone High School.

Robert P. Jackson, a native of Piedmont, W. Va., who has been teaching at Southern High School in Garrett County and has been residing at Mountain Lake Park with his wife and family, has been named to the faculty of Valley High School, Lonaconing, where he will teach biology and chemistry.

Mr. Rizer said Mr. Jackson will replace Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, who has been named principal at Mt. Savage High School.

Mrs. Kolb, who graduated from Flintstone High School in 1938, received her degree from the University of Maryland four years later, with a major in home economics and a minor in science.

She taught at Flintstone High School, at Annapolis, Greenbelt and Aberdeen, did graduate work at West Virginia University and Frostburg State Teachers College in 1960, and is resuming her teaching career this fall.

Mr. Jackson, who graduated from St. Peter's High School in Westernport in 1949, attended Potomac State College in Keyser, W. Va., for two years, and then West Virginia University, where he received his B.S. degree in 1956.

After graduation he taught for two years at Havre de Grace and later went to Southern High School. He also spent two years in the military service.

Midland Again Names Mathias Town Attorney

Town's Financial Position Good

John J. Mathias of Frostburg has been reappointed attorney for the town of Midland for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, by Mayor Lionel D. Baker and the town council.

In announcing the appointment, Mayor Baker lauded the efforts of Mr. Mathias in preparing and modernizing the new town charter.

Other appointments announced were David J. Williams, city clerk; J. Edwin Winters, treasurer; Hazel Taylor, tax collector, and Charles McGowan, bailiff.

Members of the council are Commissioners Harry J. Devlin and Alex Rennie, water and light; Donald Cook and Wilbur Crowe, streets and public property; and John Blair and William Kroll, police and finance.

The financial position of Midland was favorably reflected in a report filed by Mr. Winters, treasurer.

For the last fiscal year the town's total income was $14,772.47, with $832.44 cash on hand as of June 30. This was less than the $2,857.46 on hand June 30, 1961, but Mr. Winters pointed out the smaller balance was due to purchase of equipment and materials including a new snowplow and a mower, resurfacing and blacktopping more streets, and additional salary fees.

Receipts included $3,692.22 from taxes on real and personal property; $3,300.22 gasoline and motor vehicle taxes; $1,343.22, admission, franchise, bank stock and income taxes; $608.12, licenses; $598.23, town's share from race tracks; $1,220 from alcoholic beverages; $840, Allegany County appropriation; $212, magistrate and garage rental; $52, building and sewer tap permits, and $49 donations.

Disbursements totaled $13,940.03. These included capital expenditures, street department, $5,936 for resurfacing and blacktopping streets; labor, hauling including snow removal, $1,690.75; miscellaneous equipment, matreials, including snow plow and power mower, $1,399.65.

Water department expenses were $313.44 for fire plugs, Street and light expenditures included $1551.44 for street lights and $74.24 for town hall and Christmas lights.

Other expenditures included commission on taxes $184.60; legal fees and notices, $295.50; withholding taxes (state and federal for bailiff) $190.34; insurance and bond premiums $134.76; audit fee, $125; donations $5; Christmas treat, $15; Maryland Municipal League dues, $43.75; registration clerks $20, miscellaneous stationery and postage $36.09; Columbia Gas Company $69.27, and salaries $1,929.54.

Mr. Mathias reported to council that work is progressing rapidly on arranging and rewriting new town ordinances. The council voted to have city books audited by Lowell M. Sowers Jr., CPA, of Frostburg.

Street Dept. Centralizes Purchases

Unit Will Shop For Best Buys

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, has centralized all purchases for that department.

Affected are the Street Departments, Sewer Department, sewage treatment plant, parks and the maintenance of public property.

Mrs. Roeder said all purchases made for the units are being made through John R. Wilson, Street Department clerk at City Hall.

She added that informal bids will be asked for purchases under $500, when formal bids are not required by the city code.

The plan being adopted, she said, is the best which can be used until the administration adopts a central purchasing plan.

One of the items in the eight-point program advocated by Mayor Earl D. Chaney Monday called for hiring a purchasing agent and creating a central warehouse for all city supplies.

Similar proposals have been made several times in the past but have never advanced beyond the discussion stage.

REV. MR. WHITSON

Will Speak At St. Paul's

Rev. L. Stanley Whitson, formerly of Cumberland, will be speaker at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Rev. Mr. Whitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Whitson, 203 Columbia Street, is a 1936 graduate of Allegany High School, took his A.B. degree at Gettysburg College in 1941 and his B.D. at Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., in 1948.

A former pastor at Clear Spring, he now is pastor of Holy Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Elkins, W. Va., is a member of the West Virginia Synod's examining and social missions committees, and is chairman of the special services committee of the Elkins Ministerial Association.

He is married to the former Dorothy Jean Dunkelberger, and they have two sons, Robert and Paul Martin.

Postmaster Job Open At Westernport

July 31 Deadline For Applications

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced that applications for the job of postmaster at Westernport will be accepted until July 31.

The test for the $5,790 position will be given at the Cumberland Post Office and the exact date will be announced later.

Russell W. McBee is the acting postmaster at Westernport. Thomas V. McGuire, the former postmaster, retired several months ago.

However, education above the high school level may be substituted for one and one-half years of experience.

Persons seeking the position also must be able to supervise employes so customers are satisfied with the service. They also must show they are of good reputation and that they can deal with the public agreeably and effectively.

Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday on the closing date of the exam. Persons over 70 years of age cannot be appointed.

Application forms may be obtained by writing to the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Red Cross Cites Need For Donors

Bloodmobile Here Monday

During this period walk-in donors are especially welcome. And regular donors who have not been contacted because of the Fourth of July holiday and vacations are urgently requested to come to the Eagles Home Monday from noon until 6 p. m. when the bloodmobile unit from Johnstown Regional Blood Center makes its visit here.

Red Cross officials stressed the fact that the need for blood is even greater during the summer vacation season than in other periods of the year. The accident danger is greater and the need continues for blood for sickness and surgery cases.

Also emphasized was the extent of the blood program. Area residents who may be injured in an accident or require surgery when some distance from home need only advise doctors or hospital officials there of their residence within the Johnstown regional blood program area to get blood under the same eligibility requirements that exist here.

Truckers Get Heavy Fines In Overload Case

Two truck drivers received fines totaling over $500 yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on charges of overloading their trucks.

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett heard the case in May, but withheld a decision until yesterday pending a test report on the scales used to weigh the trucks.

Earl C. Clites, 38, Cumberland, was fined $281.50 and Clifton Eugene Clites, 31, of RFD 1, Hyndman, Pa., was fined $248.50. The trucks are owned by their father, John Ross Clites.

John J. Devlin of the State Roads Commission arrested the two men May 6 on State Route 36 near Mt. Savage. One of the vehicles had an overload of 7,475 pounds, while the other truck was overloaded by 8,025 pounds. The trucks were carrying coal at the time of the violation.

The fine is based on a formula established on the axle load of each truck and the magistrate does not have the power to suspend the fine.

Gibson Considers Request To Serve New Council

Arthur B. Gibson, former city comptroller, is "seriously considering" accepting an invitation to serve as the city's financial consultant while steps are being taken to secure a new comptroller.

He has been asked by Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill to serve during the critical six-month period which includes closing out the books of the fiscal year which ended June 30 and the setting up of a levy and budget for the current fiscal year.

There is considerable urgency, since the new administration must set the levy by August 25.

Mr. Gibson retired late in 1961 after serving as auditor and comptroller for the City of Cumberland for 24 years.

Chamber Offers Survival Course In Economics

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an "economic survival" course entitled "Freedom versus Communism" beginning July 11, according to Karl W. Bachman, president.

J. Goodloe Jackson will serve as instructor for the course which will continue for eight weeks. Classes will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Chamber offices.

About eight more persons can be accepted for the class, the Chamber said.

The Freedom Versus Communism course, prepared by the U. S. Chamber, is designed to give participants an objective appraisal of the Communist challenge and the strength of the private enterprise system.

Lessons include the Communist challenge, consumer control of controlled consumers, profit motive or master plan, who gets what, the role of government, the big picture, meeting the economic challenge and what can be done about Communism.

Bids Expected On Cumberland Thruway Contract

The SRC recently announced that the project was being advanced to July 10 from September.

Final plans forwarded to City Engineer C. R. Nuzum show that the project will extend about .7 of a mile north from the end of the present dual-lane highway at West Street to Cresap Street.

The contract also provides for the construction of a new Cresap Street paralleling the existing street, which will remain to serve homes on the south side of the street.

The extension of West First Street, from Oak Street, to connect with the new highway is also included.

Butterfat Producers Are Cited

Shumaker Brothers of Rawlings are the owners of cows which placed first, second and third in the top 10 butterfat producers during June in the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

No. 855, artificial grade Holstein, produced 888 pounds of butterfat and 1,960 pounds of milk to take top honors.

Second place winner was No. 455, artificial grade Holstein, which produced 80 pounds of butterfat and 1,910 pounds of milk.

No. 385, artificial grade Holstein, produced 73 pounds of butterfat and 1,830 pounds of milk to take third place honors.

Shumaker Brothers also had two other cows which placed sixth and seventh in the top ten. C. W. Brinker of Springfield, W. Va. is owner of the fourth, fifth and tenth place winners.

Harry H. Delbrook of Mt. Savage had the eighth and ninth place winners, according to Harry E. Miller, DHIA supervisor, who said 220 cows were on test during June.

The average production of all cows was 813 pounds of milk and 30.4 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.74 per cent, he added.

Is Recuperating

Enthusiastic Guardsmen Set Bridge On Fire

CAMP DAWSON, W. Va. (AP)—Some 75 Maryland National Guardsmen, undergoing guerrilla warfare training, got a little too enthusiastic in a mock pre-dawn raid Friday on a railroad bridge near here. They accidentally set it afire.

The railroad raid, staged in conjunction with a raid on a steel highway bridge 100 yards down the Cheat River, was the final examination for the guardsmen.

Presumably, they all passed.

City's Parking Meter System Under Study

Changes Coming, Keegan Reports

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said yesterday that a study of the city's parking meter system is under way and that some changes will be made.

Mr. Keegan said no changes will be made until the study is completed but that there will definitely be some revision in the time, hours and price of metered parking.

He said it has definitely been decided that meters will be provided in some places where motorists can have all-day parking for 25 cents.

At present, the Police Department has 482 parking meters in operation and has 42 spares on hand for use while meters are being repaired.

To Mark Routes

They include 194 gold meters which offer two-hour parking and will take a nickel or a dime, 172 blue five-hour meters which will take a nickel, dime or quarter, 93 red 30-minute meters which will take nickels only, and 13 three-hour silver meters which will operate on either nickels or dimes.

He said one difficulty with the present meters is that they cannot be changed here and do not offer the necessary flexibility.

The changes made, he said, will be designed to help operate the meters, as all other functions of the Police Department, with efficiency and economy.

Plans are also being made, he added, to improve the flow of traffic on North Mechanic Street at Baltimore Street.

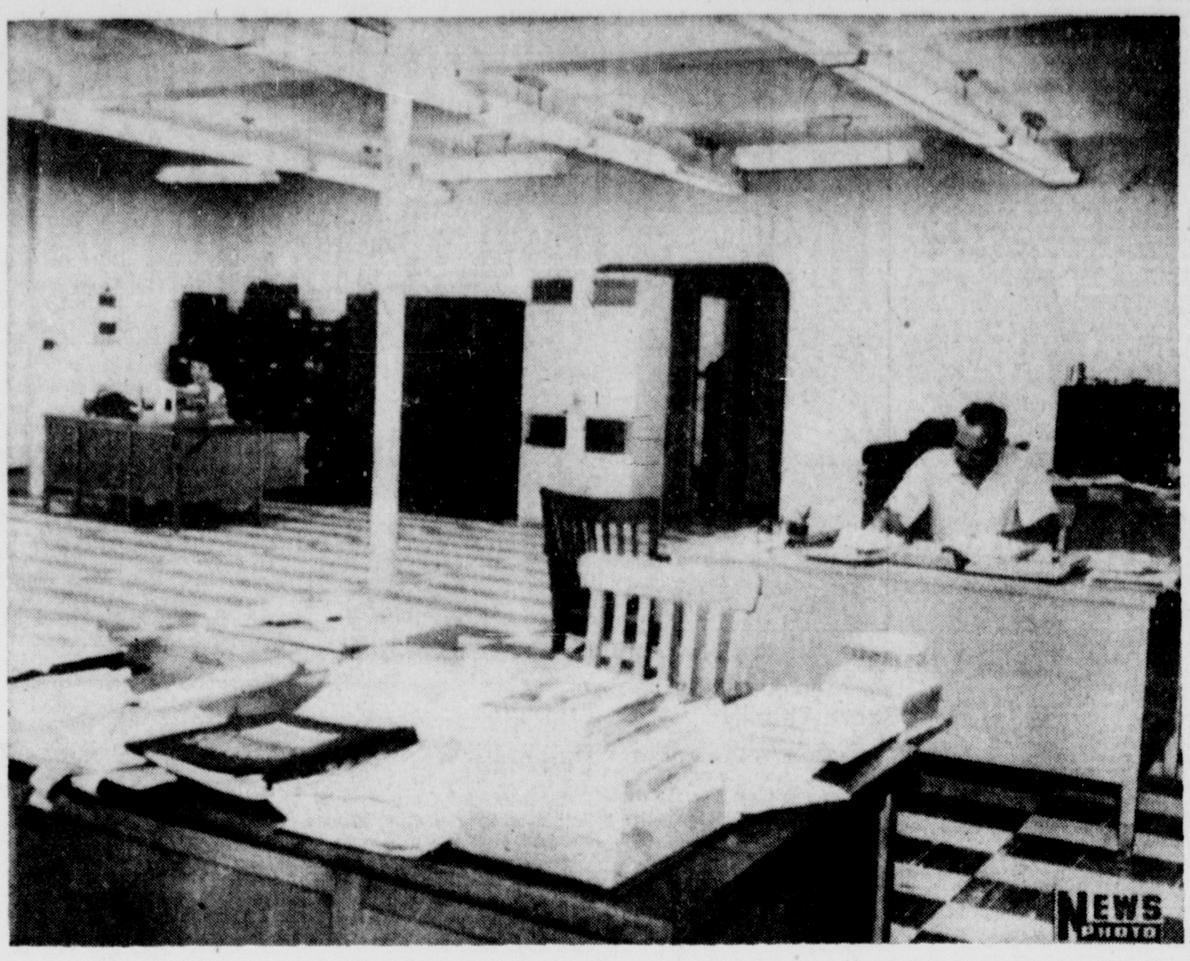

Wires will be strung at the intersection, he said, to mark the direction traffic may flow in each of the three lanes, along with signs designating the lane to use to get on Route 40, Route 220 and Route 28.

Will Work Traffic

Mr. Keegan is also looking into the possibility of improving the flow of traffic at Baltimore and North Centre streets.

The plan, which is already in use in Frostburg, calls for revamping the light system to provide a 10-second interval for left turns at the beginning of the go cycle.

To speed the flow of traffic on Tuesdays and Fridays, plans are being made for officers to work traffic on Mechanic Street at Bedford Street.

Judge Confirms Cadillac Sale To Frederick

Receiver's Bond Is Increased

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey yesterday signed a court order ratifying and approving the sale of The Cadillac Lounge, 25 North Mechanic Street, to Henry F. Frederick, city, who on Thursday submitted an offer of $10,500 for the business, the higher of two offers.

The court action was taken after an attorney for the receiver of The Cadillac Lounge Inc., Mrs. Jane Molinari, reported to Judge Cobey the sale of the business to Frederick.

The other offer was submitted by Raymond Parker Sr., for $10,000.

The judge stipulated in the court order that the sale was ratified and approved upon the transfer of the liquor license to the purchaser.

The bond of the receiver was ordered increased from $5,000 to at least $10,500, said Judge Cobey.

Meanwhile, Mr. Frederick visited the office of the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage Licenses Commissioners yesterday morning and picked up an application for the Class D beer, wine and liquor license held by The Cadillac Lounge Inc. which was placed in receivership when an equity suit was filed in May.

He has until Wednesday, July 12, to file his application for the license with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of court, for action by the liquor board.

The two offers were opened Thursday afternoon by Judge Cobey in his chambers. The busines was sold on June 23 at a public sale to Mark Lazarus Sr. for $7,000 but was put up for resale when Judge Cobey deemed the amount inadequate.

Thursday morning, Clarence Lippel, attorney for Lazarus, filed an appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals from the decision Judge Cobey handed down Tuesday in connection with the sale of the cocktail lounge.

Mrs. Doris Kolb, of LaVale, who taught for a number of years in high schools throughout Maryland, is resuming her teaching career and has been assigned to Allegany High School where she will teach home economics.

She will replace Mrs. Jane Shipway, who has been transferred to Flintstone High School.

Mr. Rizer said Mr. Jackson will replace Kendrick Y. Hodgdon, who has been named principal at Mt. Savage High School.

Mrs. Kolb, who graduated from Flintstone High School in 1938, received her degree from the University of Maryland four years later, with a major in home economics and a minor in science.

She taught at Flintstone High School, at Annapolis, Greenbelt and Aberdeen, did graduate work at West Virginia University and Frostburg State Teachers College in 1960, and is resuming her teaching career this fall.

Mr. Jackson, who graduated from St. Peter's High School in Westernport in 1949, attended Potomac State College in Keyser, W. Va., for two years, and then West Virginia University, where he received his B.S. degree in 1956.

Midland Again Names Mathias Town Attorney

Town's Financial Position Good

John J. Mathias of Frostburg has been reappointed attorney for the town of Midland for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, by Mayor Lionel D. Baker and the town council.

In announcing the appointment, Mayor Baker lauded the efforts of Mr. Mathias in preparing and modernizing the new town charter.

Other appointments announced were David J. Williams, city clerk; J. Edwin Winters, treasurer; Hazel Taylor, tax collector, and Charles McGowan, bailiff.

Members of the council are Commissioners Harry J. Devlin and Alex Rennie, water and light; Donald Cook and Wilbur Crowe, streets and public property; and John Blair and William Kroll, police and finance.

The financial position of Midland was favorably reflected in a report filed by Mr. Winters, treasurer.

For the last fiscal year the town's total income was $14,772.47, with $832.44 cash on hand as of June 30. This was less than the $2,857.46 on hand June 30, 1961, but Mr. Winters pointed out the smaller balance was due to purchase of equipment and materials including a new snowplow and a mower, resurfacing and blacktopping more streets, and additional salary fees.

Receipts included $3,692.22 from taxes on real and personal property; $3,300.22 gasoline and motor vehicle taxes; $1,343.22, admission, franchise, bank stock and income taxes; $608.12, licenses; $598.23, town's share from race tracks; $1,220 from alcoholic beverages; $840, Allegany County appropriation; $212, magistrate and garage rental; $52, building and sewer tap permits, and $49 donations.

Disbursements totaled $13,940.03. These included capital expenditures, street department, $5,936 for resurfacing and blacktopping streets; labor, hauling including snow removal, $1,690.75; miscellaneous equipment, matreials, including snow plow and power mower, $1,399.65.

Water department expenses were $313.44 for fire plugs, Street and light expenditures included $1551.44 for street lights and $74.24 for town hall and Christmas lights.

Other expenditures included commission on taxes $184.60; legal fees and notices, $295.50; withholding taxes (state and federal for bailiff) $190.34; insurance and bond premiums $134.76; audit fee, $125; donations $5; Christmas treat, $15; Maryland Municipal League dues, $43.75; registration clerks $20, miscellaneous stationery and postage $36.09; Columbia Gas Company $69.27, and salaries $1,929.54.

Mr. Mathias reported to council that work is progressing rapidly on arranging and rewriting new town ordinances. The council voted to have city books audited by Lowell M. Sowers Jr., CPA, of Frostburg.

Street Dept. Centralizes Purchases

Unit Will Shop For Best Buys

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, has centralized all purchases for that department.

Affected are the Street Departments, Sewer Department, sewage treatment plant, parks and the maintenance of public property.

Mrs. Roeder said all purchases made for the units are being made through John R. Wilson, Street Department clerk at City Hall.

She added that informal bids will be asked for purchases under $500, when formal bids are not required by the city code.

The plan being adopted, she said, is the best which can be used until the administration adopts a central purchasing plan.

Similar proposals have been made several times in the past but have never advanced beyond the discussion stage.

Red Cross Cites Need For Donors

Bloodmobile Here Monday

During this period walk-in donors are especially welcome. And regular donors who have not been contacted because of the Fourth of July holiday and vacations are urgently requested to come to the Eagles Home Monday from noon until 6 p. m. when the bloodmobile unit from Johnstown Regional Blood Center makes its visit here.

Red Cross officials stressed the fact that the need for blood is even greater during the summer vacation season than in other periods of the year. The accident danger is greater and the need continues for blood for sickness and surgery cases.

Also emphasized was the extent of the blood program. Area residents who may be injured in an accident or require surgery when some distance from home need only advise doctors or hospital officials there of their residence within the Johnstown regional blood program area to get blood under the same eligibility requirements that exist here.

Truckers Get Heavy Fines In Overload Case

Two truck drivers received fines totaling over $500 yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on charges of overloading their trucks.

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett heard the case in May, but withheld a decision until yesterday pending a test report on the scales used to weigh the trucks.

Earl C. Clites, 38, Cumberland, was fined $281.50 and Clifton Eugene Clites, 31, of RFD 1, Hyndman, Pa., was fined $248.50. The trucks are owned by their father, John Ross Clites.

John J. Devlin of the State Roads Commission arrested the two men May 6 on State Route 36 near Mt. Savage. One of the vehicles had an overload of 7,475 pounds, while the other truck was overloaded by 8,025 pounds. The trucks were carrying coal at the time of the violation.

The fine is based on a formula established on the axle load of each truck and the magistrate does not have the power to suspend the fine.

Chamber Offers Survival Course In Economics

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an "economic survival" course entitled "Freedom versus Communism" beginning July 11, according to Karl W. Bachman, president.

J. Goodloe Jackson will serve as instructor for the course which will continue for eight weeks. Classes will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Chamber offices.

About eight more persons can be accepted for the class, the Chamber said.

The Freedom Versus Communism course, prepared by the U. S. Chamber, is designed to give participants an objective appraisal of the Communist challenge and the strength of the private enterprise system.

Lessons include the Communist challenge, consumer control of controlled consumers, profit motive or master plan, who gets what, the role of government, the big picture, meeting the economic challenge and what can be done about Communism.

Bids Expected On Cumberland Thruway Contract

The SRC recently announced that the project was being advanced to July 10 from September.

Final plans forwarded to City Engineer C. R. Nuzum show that the project will extend about .7 of a mile north from the end of the present dual-lane highway at West Street to Cresap Street.

The contract also provides for the construction of a new Cresap Street paralleling the existing street, which will remain to serve homes on the south side of the street.

The extension of West First Street, from Oak Street, to connect with the new highway is also included.

Gibson Considers Request To Serve New Council

Arthur B. Gibson, former city comptroller, is "seriously considering" accepting an invitation to serve as the city's financial consultant while steps are being taken to secure a new comptroller.

He has been asked by Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill to serve during the critical six-month period which includes closing out the books of the fiscal year which ended June 30 and the setting up of a levy and budget for the current fiscal year.

There is considerable urgency, since the new administration must set the levy by August 25.

Day Shows Have More 'Freedom'

This is the happy state observed by Manya Starr, a charming woman who currently writes (and owns) The Clear Horizon, a detergent opera which deals with life among the Cape Canaveral families.

"I can say things on daytime television," Mrs. Starr says, "which I could never say at night. I don't know why that is, but it's true.

"On The Clear Horizon, we have a Negro on the show. He's treated as though he were white; in fact, if this was radio, no one would know he's Negro. He plays a friend of the hero, and we never once mention his color at all. The actor who plays the part says he likes doing it because, as he puts it, 'I'm really playing a white part'.

"So we have no taboos on daytime television. I've never been limited and I'm planning a story which will run soon which deals with communism."

The Clear Horizon exemplifies the new soap opera, which many call detergent operas. It is thoroughly topical, dealing as it does with the men who are exploring space.

"So far," Mrs. Starr says, "the only complaint we've had has come from the Cocoa Beach Chamber of Commerce. They objected because I kept having my characters complain about the heat. I took them all out to dinner, though, and charmed them out of their anger."

All For Kids

The ABC Television Network will schedule four children's programs in a two-hour block from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturdays beginning this fall. The four programs will be "Make a Face," "Top Cat," "Bugs Bunny" and "The Magic Land of Allakazam."

Comedian Cries His Way To Show Success

Somehow, the sight of a man crying in the middle of a comedy routine appeals to the audience. At any rate, Taylor is looked on in the profession as a comer, tears and all. He's already sobbed his way through three shots with Ed Sullivan.

Taylor comes from Wahington, D. C., and is the son of an ex-vaudevillian. He worked for two years as a Senate page boy, then went to George Washington University for three years. But comedy was calling and he quit college.

"My first act," he says, "was pantomiming records of pop singers. And then I found myself beginning to use my own voice, when one of the records became stuck. People laughed, so I haven't gone back to miming since."

Sam 'Dr. Zorba' Jaffe Known As 'The Brain'

When Sam Jaffe, the scholarly neurosurgeon in ABC-TV's "Ben Casey," came to the studio for costume fittings for his role as Dr. David Zorba in the early days of the series' production, he was accompanied by his charming, vivacious wife, Bettye Ackerman.

"Since the fittings would not take too long, Betty decided to pass the time with me. She was dressed in a work shirt and dungarees and had no thought of the amazing interlude that would transpire while waiting for me," Sam said.

Fielder Cook, the director, saw her and asked her to audition for the role of Dr. Maggie Graham. Bettye was aghast, but after a little persuasion, read the lines and was immediately hired for the part.

Togetherness began for Sam and Bettye about six years ago when they met in 1956. Bettye, an ambitious young actress from South Carolina, was cast in an off Broadway production of Moliere's "Tartuffe" starring Sam. They were married six months later and spent their honeymoon as members of the National Company of the "Lark" touring with Julie Harris.

If fate played a part in Bettye's acquiring her role in "Ben Casey," it played a more profound part in the life of Sam Jaffe. Known as "the brain" among his Hollywood intimates for his extensive intellectual ability, Sam was graduated as a mathematics major from City College of New York, and became dean of mathematics at the Bronx Cultural Institute.

Even today he read calculus texts as others read newspapers. It was during his tenure as a math teacher that fate stepped in. Edward Goodman of the Washington Square Players say Sam play in an amateur production stayed by the school's teachers and induced Jaffe to join a Players company on tour.

Sam never returned to teaching.

In addition to being a math scholar, he speaks six languages fluently, went through college on money earned as a professional boxer and composed musical scores. One of his works, "Rondo," was once performed in Carnegie Hall.

Day Shows Have More 'Freedom'

This is the happy state observed by Manya Starr, a charming woman who currently writes (and owns) The Clear Horizon, a detergent opera which deals with life among the Cape Canaveral families.

"I can say things on daytime television," Mrs. Starr says, "which I could never say at night. I don't know why that is, but it's true.

"On The Clear Horizon, we have a Negro on the show. He's treated as though he were white; in fact, if this was radio, no one would know he's Negro. He plays a friend of the hero, and we never once mention his color at all. The actor who plays the part says he likes doing it because, as he puts it, 'I'm really playing a white part'.

"So we have no taboos on daytime television. I've never been limited and I'm planning a story which will run soon which deals with communism."

The Clear Horizon exemplifies the new soap opera, which many call detergent operas. It is thoroughly topical, dealing as it does with the men who are exploring space.

"So far," Mrs. Starr says, "the only complaint we've had has come from the Cocoa Beach Chamber of Commerce. They objected because I kept having my characters complain about the heat. I took them all out to dinner, though, and charmed them out of their anger."

Paladin's Son Makes Actor Debut With Dad

Peter Boone, 9, speaks his first lines as an actor when he appears with his father, Richard Boone, in an upcoming "Have Gun, Will Travel" episode now in production.

According to Boone, who stars as Paladin in the series, son Peter already thinks like a professional actor. Boone showed Peter the script, in which the boy has four lines, then asked his son what he thought of the part. The answer . . . "Oh, it's okay, Dad—what there is of it."

Sing Along Gets Ready

"We've just finished taping the first 'Sing Along' show for next season," reports Mitch Miller, "and we didn't start any too soon. This year we started with fourteen shows ahead and ended in a tie. But next season we want a better cushion."

Mitch pointed out that it takes two weeks to make one show: six days of rehearsal, two days of taping and six more to work out new production ideas.

"We had such great response on the two Irving Berlin shows that we'll be featuring more composers next season, but in segments rather than in complete shows.

FORSAKES TV — Jan Miner, whose face was as familiar as test patterns in early days of television, isn't seen quite so often on the domestic screens anymore. Reason: "I want to act," so the attractive grandmother is looking for off-Broadway, eventually Broadway, roles.

Individual King To Hanna-Barbera

When you walk into the offices of Hanna-Barbera Productions in the heart of Hollywood, you notice an immediate difference from the atmosphere surrounding other filmtown movie-making operations.

To start with, there are no time clacks. Red tape is non-existent. No memos are written. If an employe has a problem, he walks directly to the office of either Bill Hanna or Joe Barbera, presents it—and gets an answer.

The individual is king at Hanna-Barbera. And this is one of the reasons for the extraordinary success, humor and lack of headaches at Hollywood's top television factory.

NEW TV USE—Kenneth Banghart, longtime newscaster, helped in formation of Teleguide, a system whereby shows are piped into hotels and the person in the room switches the set to one of the vacant channels and sees for free an hour program which repeats endlessly in three parts — sightseeing, shopping hints, and entertainment ideas. Every so often, material is re-filmed to keep it up to date.

Paladin's Son Makes Actor Debut With Dad

Peter Boone, 9, speaks his first lines as an actor when he appears with his father, Richard Boone, in an upcoming "Have Gun, Will Travel" episode now in production.

According to Boone, who stars as Paladin in the series, son Peter already thinks like a professional actor. Boone showed Peter the script, in which the boy has four lines, then asked his son what he thought of the part. The answer . . . "Oh, it's okay, Dad—what there is of it."

Sing Along Gets Ready

"We've just finished taping the first 'Sing Along' show for next season," reports Mitch Miller, "and we didn't start any too soon. This year we started with fourteen shows ahead and ended in a tie. But next season we want a better cushion."

Mitch pointed out that it takes two weeks to make one show: six days of rehearsal, two days of taping and six more to work out new production ideas.

"We had such great response on the two Irving Berlin shows that we'll be featuring more composers next season, but in segments rather than in complete shows.

FORSAKES TV — Jan Miner, whose face was as familiar as test patterns in early days of television, isn't seen quite so often on the domestic screens anymore. Reason: "I want to act," so the attractive grandmother is looking for off-Broadway, eventually Broadway, roles.

Individual King To Hanna-Barbera

When you walk into the offices of Hanna-Barbera Productions in the heart of Hollywood, you notice an immediate difference from the atmosphere surrounding other filmtown movie-making operations.

To start with, there are no time clacks. Red tape is non-existent. No memos are written. If an employe has a problem, he walks directly to the office of either Bill Hanna or Joe Barbera, presents it—and gets an answer.

The individual is king at Hanna-Barbera. And this is one of the reasons for the extraordinary success, humor and lack of headaches at Hollywood's top television factory.

NEW TV USE—Kenneth Banghart, longtime newscaster, helped in formation of Teleguide, a system whereby shows are piped into hotels and the person in the room switches the set to one of the vacant channels and sees for free an hour program which repeats endlessly in three parts — sightseeing, shopping hints, and entertainment ideas. Every so often, material is re-filmed to keep it up to date.
